The Republican presidential nominee making a speech at Wilkes Barre Pa, did not hear the address of the CIO head denouncing Mr Roosevelt's candidacy However he listened later to a transcription in his private car and said he was naturally gratified

As I have said many times of late he added, if American democracy is to survive, the people of America must unite themselves in a great voluntary movement to strengthen this nation

We must have an end of group and class warfare Mr Lewis' eloquent and unqualified enlistment in our crusade is a great stride toward bringing the spontaneous unity of action and purpose that will follow soon as we are elected

Sees Unity Ahead

I believe that our election will draw all the elements of American society into a great united movement to make America impregnable in its domestic economy and in its defense It is in that manner that we shall save the most precious thing left in this war torn world—the free way of life in America '

In his late evening radio talk, broadcast nationally from his campaign train at the Wilkes-Barre station, he pitched his voice low to try to overcome his huskiness

Saying extemporaneously that he wanted President Roosevelt to reply to several queries in his next political speech, Willkie declared in his prepared text that he wanted the Chief executive to repeat his pledge to keep the country out of foreign wars

I sincerely hope,' he said, that on some future occasion the third term candidate will not tell the reporters that as of the day he made that pledge he had no intention of going to war

The American people want promises that will last

In an address prepared for an audience in the heart of the anthracite country, Willkie continued

Here you have a management in the office of your government which has had a fair trial of eight years and in all that time it has been unable to solve the problem of the farmer, revive industry or provide our people with jobs And now that management tells us that it can t be done

Lewis Supports Willkie in Labor Vote Showdown

G O P Nominee Welcomes Backing; C. I. O Leader Draws Praise and Criticism from Union Membership.

By The Associated Press

A showdown fight for the nation's millions of labor votes developed in the presidential campaign today after John L Lewis the C I O leader gave his unqualified support to Wendell L Willkie with the assertion that reelection of President Roosevelt for a third term would be a national evil of the first magnitude '

The Republican nominee who was campaigning in the heart of the Pennsylvania anthracite fields at Wilkes-Barre as Lewis declared his position, immediately welcomed the statement of support. I am glad to have the help of Mr Lewis—a valiant defender of labor who puts his country above all ' Willkie said

Lewis speaking by radio from his office in Washington last night, staked his position as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations on a victory for Willkie Nov 5 He asserted that he would resign if Mr Roosevelt won

Sustain me now or repudiate me he dramatically challenged members of the C I O and promptly in speech and statement, other leaders of that organization began to choose sides in the struggle

In New York Allan H Haywood national organizing director of the C I O announced that he and many of his colleagues had assured Lewis that they indorse his statement and pledge continued fealty to his leadership '

But in Philadelphia, Alexander McKeown, president, and other high officials of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers a C I O affiliate telegraphed Mr Roosevelt a pledge of 'continued loyalty and enthusiastic support.

Speaks from Washington

Similar divisions of political opinion were evidenced in numerous other comments on the Lewis pronouncement

Lewis made his address from his office in the United Mine Workers building in Washington He stated at the outset that he was abandoning my right to speak officially' for the labor organizations he heads and was speaking instead in a personal capacity The broadcast over three national radio networks was sponsored and paid for by the National Committee of Democrats for Willkie

The labor leader supported Mr Roosevelt in 1936 In his speech he related how labor organizations had put money and workers into that campaign But he added, 'a political coalition at least, presupposes a post-election good faith between the coalescent interests The Democratic party and its leadership have not preserved this faith '

He said also that for three years organized labor had lacked a voice in the administration and that 'baiting and defaming of labor by the Democratic majority in congress has become a pastime "

His War Motive

Mr Roosevelt's 'motivation and objective ' Lewis declared 'is war The nation he continued, should not yield 'to the appetite for power and the vaunting ambitions of a man who plays with the lives of human being for a pastime '

Taking up the Roosevelt administration's record, he said that 'after seven years of power, it finds itself without solution for the major questions of unemployment, low national income mounting internal debt, increasing direct and consumer taxation and restricted foreign markets

About mid-way of his speech Lewis asked 'if not Roosevelt' whom do I recommend to do the job of making secure our nation and its people?'

'Why, of course ' he said 'I recommend the election of Wendell L Willkie as the next president of the United States '

I commend him to the men and women of labor, and to the nation, he declared as one who will capably and zealously protect their rights, increase their privileges and restore their happiness

Calls Roosevelt 'Caesar'

The labor leader denounced the President as 'a Caesar,' said his "motivation and purpose" was 'war,' accused him of seeking a concentration of power in his own hands and said his re-election would be a national evil of the first magnitude' America, he added, needs no superman," and wants no royal family '

He said that Willkie, on the other hand had said he would end unemployment, enforce the right of labor to organize and promote collective bargaining If Willkie is elected he said, 'this task can and will be done" He had "confidence" he said, in Willkie's 'integrity and honor"

Appealing to prospective draftees Lewis said

You who may be about to die in a foreign war, created at the whim of an international meddler, should you salute your Caesar? In cold, common sense, I think you should vote for Willkie."

He appealed too to labor, to the farmers, to youth, and other groups, and said Mr Roosevelt had failed to solve the nation's economic troubles

"It is authoritatively stated," he

Hull Reveals President's Communication To France

Word Sent to Vichy Regarding Effect of Nazi Parley on American Interests in Atlantic.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

VICHY, FRANCE Oct. 26—Marshal Philippe Petain of France and Adolf Hitler agreed 'on collaboration in principle' for 'the reconstruction and peace of Europe it was announced officially here tonight.

Means of applying the agreement will be examined later said a brief communique issued after a cabinet meeting

Hitler and Petain held a general examination of the situation and in particular the means of reconstructing peace in Europe it was added

* * *

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct 26—Secretary Hull said today that President Roosevelt had sent a communication to the French government several days ago in regard to negotiations now underway between France and Germany and their effect on American interests

The communication, the secretary of state said, was dispatched about the time that Adolf Hitler and Marshal Petain met somewhere in occupied France ' to discuss the possibility of closer collaboration between their two nations

Hull declined however to make public the text of the President s communication or any details of the specific subjects involved

The secretary, answering newspapermen s questions said that at the Havana conference the 21 American nations had formulated a policy involving the territories in the western hemisphere owned by European governments whose status might be changed by developments in the European war

LAVAL RETURNS FROM CONFERENCES

By The Associated Press

VICHY, FRANCE, Oct 26—Vice Premier Pierre Laval returned to Vichy from a unannounced city today as the French cabinet arranged to go into council to learn France s position in the new European order' as established in Adolf Hitler s talks with Marshal Petain and Laval

(Diplomatic sources in Switzerland said Laval had conferred with Jose Felix Lequerica, the Spanish ambassador, and the Italian ambassador, as well as with Otto Abetz the German representative in Paris)

I know you did not want war and I regret meeting you under these circumstances Adolf Hitler was reported to have greeted Chief of State Petain at their historic meeting

The nature of their negotiations still was secret, however

The aged chief of staff appeared in no hurry to commit France to any new agreement with the axis

Officials who had been issuing Statements that the whole future of France depended upon the Hitler - Petain conversations changed their tune and tried to cool down the public The results, they said would be less important than expected

Nevertheless informed sources declared the negotiations would produce beneficial results for France

They also said it was possible that an axis 'peace drive'—perhaps to be addressed to President Roosevelt shortly before the United States presidential election Nov 5 — might result from present and impending conversations among Hitler Petain Laval Generalissimo Francisco Franco and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano

(In Berlin an authorized spokesman said the best answer to such reports is that the attacks on England are continuing)

ANOTHER ATTACK ON FRENCH FLEET SEEN

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct 26—The spectacle of another "Battle of Oran," with the British Mediterranean fleet swooping down on Toulon to trap French naval units there before they could put to sea, was envisioned today by informed quarters should France agree to cooperate with the axis powers against Britain.

Strategists also predicted that units of the British navy would attempt to take over French island bases in the Indian and Pacific oceans, while Martinique and other French possessions in the western hemisphere would be left to Pan-American attention.

There was no doubt in British minds that Adolf Hitler's principle purpose in his conferences with Marshal Philippe Petain, the aged leader of defeated France, was to get his hands on the French fleet, which even after the battering the British gave it, July 3 at Oran, Algeria, is better than anything the axis powers have.

The government, of course, kept official silence on Britain's probable course should the French ships pass to Hitler, but experts cited a feeling, which is general in informed quarters, that England's powerful navy would immediately try to bottle up the French fleet at Toulon.

HULL DECLARES LEWIS 100 PER CENT WRONG

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct 26—Secretary Hull declared today that John L Lewis, C I O. leader, was "100 per cent wrong" in saying—as he did in his address last night—that President Roosevelt was endeavoring to get the United States into war.

In answer to a press conference question, Hull said:

"Mr. Lewis made an attack on our foreign policy.

"Mr. Lewis is 100 per cent wrong in his effort to prejudice the American people by the baseless charge that President Roosevelt is seeking to get this nation into war.

"On the contrary throughout the years of my official association with President Roosevelt he has at all times striven to promote and preserve peace and the safety of the United States."

REPORT HUGE VESSEL DOWN OFF IRELAND

Tempo of Bombing Attacks on English Cities Increased by Nazis.

By The Associated Press

The tempo of Nazi aerial warfare against Britain and British shipping was speeded up today with reported sinking of the 42,348 ton Empress of Britain, as the world awaited the outcome of the German - Italian - French diplomatic negotiations to determine France s new status in axis-dominated Europe

London was under alarm five times between daybreak and early afternoon after a night-long hammering in which more homes and buildings were smashed and numerous casualties inflicted

Axis planes attacked eastern Scotland the British naval base of Rosyth, Liverpool, Wales and Midland industrial cities as well as the capital last night

At sea the Germans claimed to have sunk the giant liner Empress of Britain in which King George and Queen Elizabeth returned home after their visit to the United States and Canada in 1939 later reputedly in troop transport service

Informed Nazi sources said German combat planes bombed the liner north of Ireland and left her in a sinking condition after the crew got away in boats

The RAF, taking advantage of the clearest weather observed in the English channel since the start of the war, attacked a Nazi convoy off the French coast Watchers believed at least one vessel was hit Boulogne, on the French coast, was still ablaze from British night bombing,

Germany, it was disclosed today, has adopted a new four-year plan, to be directed, as was that recently completed by Reichmarshal Herman Wilhelm Goering

In London, it was learned, King George VI sent a message to Premier Marshal Philippe Petain, expressing sympathy for the French people and confidence in an eventual British victory

The Mediterranean situation was high-lighted by reports that Italy has suspended air service to Greece an action interpreted as indicative of an imminent showdown between Greece and the axis powers

Vice Premier Pierre Laval returned to Vichy after conferring with Italian, German and Spanish leaders and was due to attend a cabinet meeting at which Marshal Petain chief of state, was scheduled to report on his conversations with Adolf Hitler.

Today's Raids Brief

The daylight raids on London today were brief Bombs exploded during one raid in the central city district

Rosyth, in the Firth of Forth was the first land objective in Britain attacked after war was declared A Nazi raid Oct 16, 1939, took an acknowledged toll of 35 naval casualties, and two cruisers and one destroyer were damaged.

British and German long-range guns dueled across the English channel until an early hour today as the RAF again unloaded bombs on the continental coast.

The RAF also attacked air bases in German-occupied territory and oil supplies and naval bases in central and northern Germany,

Vichy officials, who previously gave the impression the talks meant permanent peace terms for France, said the negotiations were expected to settle only "immediate problems" between France and Germany, and may be preludes to an "axis "peace drive," perhaps aimed at President Roosevelt's aid.

To that peace report, a Berlin spokesman pointed to the continuing raids on Britain as the "best answer."

Some neutral sources in Europe still believed the talks were aimed at securing French Mediterranean bases or naval aid in exchange for less harsh axis peace terms to France.

Japanese reports in the Far East said Japanese planes bombed two bridges on the Burma road in the third attack since that vital Chinese supply route was reopened Oct. 18 by Britain.

Beneath the Smoke and Balderdash

It is 1940 and Mr. Roosevelt is running against his record. He isn't competing in a personal popularity contest with Herbert Hoover any more.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Assistive Action

Today I want to suggest some exercises that can be carried out in the home, after some simple instruction, and which have been found to be quite helpful.

I feel I should emphasize, especially when exercise is considered, that I am speaking of chronic arthritis. Whenever acute rheumatism occurs, or acute inflammation of a joint of any kind, rest and plenty of it is the only kind of physical theorapy indicated.

The same thing applies to any acute flare-up of a chronic arthritis, and such acute exacerbations are a regular part of the course of the condition. Irresponsible exercise at this time is harmful.

No special instructions need be given for exercises in arthritis. Any movement which uses the muscles around the joint and moves the joint itself is exercise. When the acute period of pain has subsided and there is limitation of movement, exercises may be said to be indicated, and any kind is good so long as it enlarges the circle movement of the joint.

Active assistive exercise is a procedure recommended by Dr. Frank H. Krusen, of the Mayo Clinic, writing for the Council on Physical Therapy of the American Medical Association. No anaesthetic is employed, but heat is applied to the joint and gentle stroking massage is used to render the joint receptive. To patient then makes an effort to move the joint to the full limit of its range of motion. The "active assistive" comes from the helper who assits in the movement, supporting the limb and helping to increase the limit of the range of motion.

Slowly and carefully applied once or twice a day, this is calculated to cause marked increase in range of motion. Active assistive exercise is applicable particularly to the knee, elbow, hip and shoulder joints. It had better not be tried on the wrist or fingers for there is a tendency for the helper to become too enthusiastic with these small joints and move them too far with a poor functional result.

75th Anniversary of First St. Mary Church Dedication To Be Celebrat

Occasion Will Be Observed Sunday With Solemn Mass of Thanksgiving

Service To Commemorate Event of Oct. 22, 1865.

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the dedication of the first church of St. Mary parish will be celebrated with a Solemn Mass of Thanksgiving at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. The pastor, Rev. William J. Spickerman will be the celebrant of the mass assisted by Rev. Benedict Rubeck, O. M. C., of Carey, a son of the parish, as deacon and Rev. Richard Rauth, C. PP. S., assistant parish priest as subdeacon. All members of the congregation are urged to receive Holy Communion on that day. The mass will be followed by Solemn Benediction.

The date of the dedication was Oct. 22, 1865. Thirty-three years later on that same date the last mass was offered in the first church, and on the next day, Oct. 23, 1898, the present church was dedicated.

The parish numbers 650 families. The parochial grade school has 335 children enrolled, its high school 109. Fourteen Sisters of Charity and two members of the laity comprise the teaching staffs. The school was built in 1905 in the pastorate of the late Rev. Joseph Denning at a cost of $40,000, and an addition was made in 1927 at a cost of $20,000 by the Rev. Francis X. Cotter, then pastor.

Many Enter Religion

Six sons of the parish have entered the priesthood since the parish was organized, and 45 young women of the parish entered the religious life. Thirty-five of them are living. Of the 45 young women, 34 entered the community of the Sisters of Charity, one of whom, Sister Irenaea Fahey, became mother general of the community. Two of the 45 entered the community of the Dominican Sisters, one the Sisters of the Precious Blood and four the order of the Holy Cross and two the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Catholic families were among the very early settlers of Marion, but they numbered few and were greatly scattered. It is known that Catholic services were held in Marion in 1840 by Father Burgess. The devotions were then held in the houses of the various Catholic families by priests who came from adjoining towns. The first permanent place of worship was the Huber shops on Mill street, near Main street. Here devotions were held for a number of years in what is called the "Old Huber Rooms."

Erected First Church

The property for the first church edifice was donated to the congregation by Timothy Fahey on Sept. 22, 1853. The Rev. John McSweeney was the first part-time resident pastor, dividing his time between Marion and St. Patrick's church in Bellefontaine, of which Marion was then a mission. In 1860 the Rev. John Coveney succeded Father McSweeney, and began plans to erect a greatly needed church. It was he who built the first church.

The first priest assigned to devote his full time to St. Mary's parish here was the Rev. John M. Mackey. Appointed in 1866, he served until 1869, when he was succeeded by the Rev. Philip McMahon. Father McMahon was active in all parish work in his two years here, but was particularly interested in the younger members of the parish. The elderly men of the parish today recall with great affection this priest of whom they were so fond as young men. Father McMahon was followed in 1871 by Father Donohue, who remained until July 15, 1875, when the Rev. Joseph M. Quatman became pastor.

REV. FR. W. J. SPICKERMAN

Built School

Father Quatman, one of three Cincinnati brothers whose long and splendid work as priests of the archdiocese forms a notable chapter in its history, commanded the construction of the old St. Mary's school on Main street, just north of the present church, very soon after his appointment. He furthered the work with vigor, and very soon after the opening of the scholastic year in 1875 had the building completed. When first completed the building served as both school and convent, the sisters occupying the south end of the building.

In September, 1879, the Rev. William Carey was named pastor. In December, 1880, he was succeeded by Father Gill, an Italian priest who had been missioned to this country by Rome.

Four months later, in April, 1881, the Rev. James A. Burns was appointed to the pastorate of St. Mary's. In his time the present rectory was built and the construction of the present church on North Main street begun. In 1897, after having completed the foundation of the church, he was succeeded by the Rev. Michael Mulvihill, in whose time the church was completed. It is of French Gothic style and seats 750. Father Mulvihill was succeeded in April of 1904 by the Rev. Joseph Denning, later Monsignor Denning. The Rev. Francis X. Cotter, now pastor of St. Bernard's church, Winton Place, Cincinnati, followed Father Denning in 1922 as pastor. Father Cotter is the only living ex-pastor of Marion, In 1928 the present pastor Father Spickerman, arrived.

Parish Priest Sons Listed

The six sons of the parish who entered the priesthood are the Rev John L. Kelly, pastor of St. Paul's church, Yellow Springs; the Rev. Theodore Sluber, D. D, pastor of St. Columbkill's parish, Wilmington; the Rev. Joseph D. McFarland, S. T. D., pastor of St. Paul's church, Cincinnati; the Rev. Robert T. Von Kaenel, assistant parish priest at St. Matthew's church, Norwood; the Rev. Benedict Rubeck, O. M. C., director of the seminary of Our Lady of Carey, Carey, and the Rev. Hugh Simpson, O. F. M., professor of philosophy at St. Francis' Normal school La Fayette.

45 Enter Convent

The 34 young women of the parish who entered the Sisters of Charity are Mother General Irenaea Fahey, Sisters Julianna Butler, Victorina Dwyer, Mary Norbert Beasley, and Angela Marie Burgess, all deceased, and Sisters Eveline Dee, Donata Wall, Apoline Hagerty, Felicita Dwyer, Marie Jeanette Schuler, Maria Corona Molloy, Cecilia Marie Dwyer, Vincent Molloy, Mary John Coffey, Cornelius O'Keefe, Jane Schuler, Mary Virginia Rafferty, Romuald Hanley, Frances Miriam Kirchner, Helen Joseph Kirchner, Austin Murphy, Marie Faustine Cahill, Felicia Voll, Isadore Hensley, Joseph Loretto Young, Mary de Lourdes Ryan, Agnes Patricia Faulkner, Marguerite Schuler, Emma Josephine Sherrer, Moira Tobin, Mary Shiela O'Brien, Patricia Neyhart, Elizabeth Brown, and Ellen Ita McKinney.

Love of the Lord

A Sermonette

By REV. W. H. KISER

* * *

Pastor, Asbury and Morral Methodist Churches.

Text: Psalm 116:1—I Love the Lord.

THE Psalmist makes his profession of love to God for deliverance. He is conscious of the fact that Divine Mercy has been freely bestowed upon him. His lot in life has become more pleasant because of this Divine relationship. He is aware of strength not his own; of a zeal for righteousness born of Divine relationship; of a light upon his pathway that leads to eternal victory.

The Psalmist's profession of love is one of understanding and the question "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me? Psa. 116:12. He is quick to realize that divine blessings entail a moral responsibility to give something in return. Relationship to the Divine Being should never be regarded as one to always bring us something and never demand anything in return.

The Psalmist says, "I love the Lord because He hath heard my voice and my supplications. Because He hath inclined His ear unto me .. For Thou hast delivered my soul from death. For the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee." Psa. 116:1-8.

Let each of us ask the question, "Why do I love the Lord?" Is it because His mercy is upon us? Is it because "He maketh the sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth the rain on the just and on the unjust? Matt. 5:45. Is it because He loves us? If ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? Do not the publicans the same?" Matt. 5.46. Is it because He makes us "New creatures in Christ?" 2 Cor. 5:17. Is it because "I shall not want?" Psa. 23:1.

Perhaps we can say, "I love the Lord "because He makes me a new creature in Christ. He gives me a new goal in life and a new philosophy of life:. I love Him because He said, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow Me." Luke 9:23.

Do we express our love in such terms as did the writer of this Psalm in the following quotations from Psa. 116? "I will walk before the Lord in the land of the living. I will take up the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. I will offer to Thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving." I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all His people."

Such an expression of love of God will fill our lives with happiness and spiritual victory.

P.-T.A. HEADS CAMPAIGN FOR THREE-MILL LEVY

Pamphlets To Be Distributed Throughout City.

Distribution of pamphlets in the interest of the renewal of the three-mill levy for school operating expenses was started this week under auspices of the Marion Parent-Teacher association council.

The pamphlets, printed early this month, were given to presidents of all units in the city this week. Each unit head was given enough to leave one at every home in her school district.

The house-to-house distribution is being done by parents who are members of the various units. The publishing of the small, four-page leaflets, presenting the need for the levy, was financed by the P.-T. A. council.

WASHINGTON — Home loans totaling 32,394 and amounting to $78,207,300 were made in the first nine months of 1940 by the 237 insured savings and loan associations in Ohio, it was reported today by Nugent Fallon, general manager of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

In the first three-quarters of 1939 by comparison, 21,835 loans were made, aggregating $61,891,980. As of Oct. 1, 1940, the institutions had home mortgage loans on their books amounting to $362,063,000.

Investors in these associations now number 518,708. During the January-September period, a total of $93,193,300 in new savings was placed in the institutions. On Oct. 1 total private savings of the public in the associations amounted to $378,419,000 as compared with $336,207,000 on the same date last year.

JUDGE
Common Pleas Court

QUALIFIED by active experience in STATE and FEDERAL Courts.

In 1939 the OHIO SUPREME COURT and LEGISLATURE adopted the position I had taken for approximately 6 years as an attorney in both State and Federal Courts in the occupational disease (silicosis) cases. The law of the entire State was reversed and changed.

My constructive program for our Common Pleas Court:

(1) PROMPT BUT CONSIDERATE ACTION on all motions, pleadings and trials. ACTION—SPEED is as essential for TRUE justice in Courts as it is for success of an army, or business.

(2) TO REFUSE to rule, hear, adjudicate or decide any case where I have or may have a personal financial or pecuniary interest.

(3) WRITTEN DECISIONS in addition to journal entries.

(4) ACTUAL SIGNING of all journal entries.

(5) OFFICE OPEN regularly at appropriate hours for convenient service to attorneys and all other people.

The Things Unsaid

MR. ROOSEVELT won't like it, but that considerable part of the press which doesn't see eye to eye with him will continue to be deeply moved by the things he didn't say Wednesday night at Philadelphia. In all probability they won't be said in any of his other frankly political speeches either. They aren't palatable political fodder. They wouldn't help his third term drive a bit.

For example, Mr. Roosevelt said nothing about government finances. He talked at length about pie in the sky, conjuring up such a rosy vision that a stranger might wonder why America doesn't elect him president for life and be done with it. But he failed to mention how an armament boom is responsible for the current illusion of improvement, or how his administration had quit trying to stop deficit spending before the armament boom began, or how the United States can realize its potential strength by pursuing the same tactics which failed to produce new jobs and real wages during his seven years as chief executive.

The plain fact of the matter is that if things were as rosy as Mr. Roosevelt says they are, he wouldn't be needing to make any frankly political speeches. He wouldn't be needing to rattle the bones of the depression and making a bid for renewal of the popularity which he built up in the campaign of 1932. This isn't 1932, and it isn't 1936. It is 1940, and Mr. Roosevelt is running against his own record. His countrymen are deciding whether he has earned the right to think of himself as an indispensable man; he isn't competing in a personal popularity contest with Herbert Hoover any more.

Cold judgment on his Philadelphia address is that it was a weak speech delivered in Mr. Roosevelt's whopping good manner. Like all politicians, he says what he thinks his friends want to hear—such things as calling his critics liars and blackguards, in a nice way, of course. This is political license and probably will go on as long as there are politicians to exercise it. Both parties are guilty of the same thing.

But, beneath the smoke and balderdash is the issue, and all sober voters try to keep their eye on it. Which of the two candidates is better equipped to provide the spark of leadership which the country needs? Which of them has the better grasp of the nation's problems? Which of them, in 1940, and thereafter, is better qualified to improve on the record of the New Deal? Nothing else matters.

He Was Called Teddy

THE WAY in which men become great is to do and say what is eternally true and useful. Theodore Roosevelt had a peculiar insight into the problem of national defense, an insight which is more appreciated today than it was when he was alive, because time and events have proved he was closer to truth than many of his contemporaries and successors in positions of political responsibility. In honor of his birthday, which fell on Oct. 27, 1858, an occasion now celebrated as Navy day because he grasped the importance of naval strength in America's destiny, his countrymen might recall profitably this admonition, spoken in 1916:

"There is no use in saying that we will fit ourselves to defend ourselves a little, but not much. Such a position is equivalent to announcing that, if necessary, we shall hit, but we shall only hit soft. The only right principle is to prepare thoroughly or not at all. The only right principle is to avoid hitting if it is possible to do so, but never under any circumstances to hit soft. To go to war a little, but not much, is the only absolutely certain way to ensure disaster. To prepare a little, but not much, stands on a par with a city developing a fire department which, after a fire occurs, can put it out a little, but not much."

Don't Miss the Forum Opening

TOMORROW will bring the season's opening program of the Community Forum and it should draw a capacity audience. The Forum has proved its value to Marion since its inauguration two years ago and that value will be enhanced with each year if public support and attendance are adequately maintained.

The forum movement is flourishing throughout the country, both in community assemblies and on the radio, and by keeping up its yearly series of programs Marion is providing evidence that it is in step with the times.

Never in history have there been so many subjects of vital concern to the American people and these offer almost limitless opportunities for open discussion. Themes such as these have been chosen for the meetings here this year and all who attend are invited and urged to present their views. Emphasis will be placed upon that phase of the Forum and it is hoped that persons present at the assemblies will avail themselves of the privilege of joining in the discussions.

For an afternoon of entertainment that is sure to be thoroughly enjoyable as well as instructive, we recommend attendance at the opening program tomorrow. After that, you are sure to attend throughout the rest of the season.

News Behind the News

Unannounced Policies Seen Committing U. S. to Cause of Great Britain.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Mr. Roosevelt has convincingly denied he has any secret agreements with Britain. Fact of the matter is none he made would be binding without public ratification by the senate—But few realize—including many officials of the government itself—the extent to which unannounced government policies have committeed the United States to the cause of Great Britain.

Paul Mallon

Not even some generals in the war department, for instance, have been aware that an agreement has been effected with Britain whereby we will both produce exactly the same types of airplanes. It has been announced officially, but in such a way as to fail to convey the full meaning. Sometime ago Mr. Roosevelt announced appointment of a "committee on the standardization of planes," composed of Messrs. Morgenthau, Knudsen, Stimson and Knox, with a comment that this committee would standardize our production of planes with that of Britain. The announcement attracted no attention.

But that committee is known to have developed the standardization agreement now to the point where the British will produce replicas of our new navy flying boats (being constructed domestically by Consolidated Aircraft) the highly respected Curtiss P-40, and certain Martin and Douglas army bombers. The agreement allows the United States to withhold from the British its bomb sight and a few similar secrets.

Not even the axis partners in Berlin and Rome have yet standardized their plane production.

Morgenthau Head Man

This standardization work has been in charge of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau. At first an intimation was published that he was to be chairman of the committee. But when Defense Commissioner Knudsen nearly dropped dead at that news, the intimation was officially withdrawn. Morgenthau, however, let the committee know he was acting as liaison man with the President, a duty which has established him as de facto chairman, nevertheless.

The army gives every appearance of not liking it very much. When air corps headquarters was asked about the deal, the response was made: "That question is out of our jurisdiction."

Economic Warfare

In equal quietude an administration of economic warfare has been set up within the government to handle that new branch of modern fighting as efficiently as the dictators. It is not, however, known by that name yet, nor have its purposes been made clear. Some months ago Mr. Roosevelt created an "administration of export control," not under an exporter or an economist, but with Lieutenant Colonel R. L. Maxwell at the head. He was to function directly under the White House. It was a one man organization of no especial significance at the start, but now has acquired a personnel of about 100. It worked up Mr. Roosevelt's order embargoing machine tools, and grants export licenses. Officials there concede it is what the division of economic warfare will be, when and if the time comes to change the name on the door.

Defense Expenditure

Defense commission publicity still is confined to setting out the impressive billions that are being allotted in contracts, but a word is rarely spoken about how much money is actually being paid out in cash for goods delivered.

A recent survey within the commission, however, disclosed expenditures are now running at a rate of $200,000,000 a month. Last year, long before the defense commission was established, the rate of expenditures was $100,000,000 a month.

Current plans contemplate a hopeful outlay of $1,000,000,000 a month, from 12 to 18 months hence.

Bellwether

Bellwether of the White House campaign flock is Bill Bullitt, former ambassador to Paris. It was Bullitt who was sent out to brandish the war club with a crisis speech when that was being stressed early in the campaign. It was the same Mr. Bullitt who went out to unleash the doves of peace a few days before Mr. Roosevelt switched the campaign to that opposite tone with his definite Philadelphia commitments.

Psychology in Army

Modernization methods of the new army morale division will not be restricted to the enlistment of hostesses. A psychology sub-division has been organized and a civilian psychology professor is being employed to see that the boys do not feel depressed.

Need Seen for U. S. To Watch Footholds Axis May Get Near Western Hemisphere.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Although we do not yet know exactly what is to develop out of the Hitler-Petain and the Hitler-Franco negotiations, there can be no doubt that they relate to matters which are of great concern to all the nations of the western hemisphere.

Thus we do not know just what Hitler is asking the helpless Vichy government to do. But we do know that he exercises the power of life and death over the French people, that the flower of their army are his prisoners, that he can starve the civilian population, and that by means of his army of occupation and secret police he can subject any French officials at home or abroad to the cruelist penalties by threatening him directly or, if he is out of reach, his family.

Walter Lippmann

Only men whose heroism was that of the martyrs could resist him, and the men of Vichy are not men of that sort. The position of the Spaniards is not much better.

The question of what France and Spain will do is, therefore, not a question of what they wish to do, but of what military use the axis can make of them. And since the war in its present phase is, like the later phases of the Napoleonic wars, a struggle between land and sea power, it is obvious that what the axis is seeking from France and Spain is, at least primarily, reinforcement of its sea power.

Current Axis Plan

Unable to meet the British navy in battle, the axis is using its military supremacy on the continent to get hold of the Mediterranean and the Atlantic bases and of the narrow waters at Gibraltar, Suez and the Dardanelles—which are the geographical key to sea power in that part of the world. If, in addition, they can take possession of the considerable remains of the French navy, so much the better.

As every one, but the deluded men of Vichy foresaw when France capitulated, Hitler is now scrapping all of the solemn engagements of the armistice and is exploiting his victory over France in order to make himself stronger as against the British navy.

No student of the problem of American naval defense will have the least doubt that directly and indirectly, we are very much affected by this affair. With Japan, Germany and Italy bound together in a 10-year offensive and defensive alliance, we must necessarily think always of the total naval power of this triple alliance.

The weakening of the British naval position weakens our naval position. No one has said this more plainly than did Mr. Willkie in his acceptance speech.

This, surely, is also the view of the President, and it follows that, if out of the Hitler-Petain and Hitler-Franco negotiations there develop acts which weaken British sea power and reinforce the triple alliance, compensating measures would have to be taken by the United States to restore the balance of naval forces in the world.

On the most important of these measures there is now wide agreement. "We must," as Mr. Willkie declared at San Francisco and repeatedly since that speech, "send, and we must keep sending, aid to Britain, our first line of defense and our only remaining friend." For as long as Britain stands and as long as her power of defense and offense in the British Isles grows greater, the Mediterranean and Pacific remain secondary theaters of war.

Other Measures

But there are other measures which it may be necessary to take in our own immediate interest, and in the common interest of British and American sea power. The French possession in this hemisphere, particularly Martinique and French Guiana, have a certain nuisance value to the axis and, potentially, a considerable value.

Under the Act of Panama, under the Monroe Doctrine, under the necessities of our own defense, we are justified in calling for a showdown in which these French possessions either declare their independence of Vichy or submit to protective custody by the United States until there is again a free and friendly government in France.

But an even more serious practical question will confront us if it should transpire that the Vichy government and Gen. Franco have been forced to give the axis military possession of Spain, and therefore Portugal, and of the west coast of Africa, including Dakar. Dakar is much nearer to South America than any base which the United States possesses; moreover, from Dakar naval

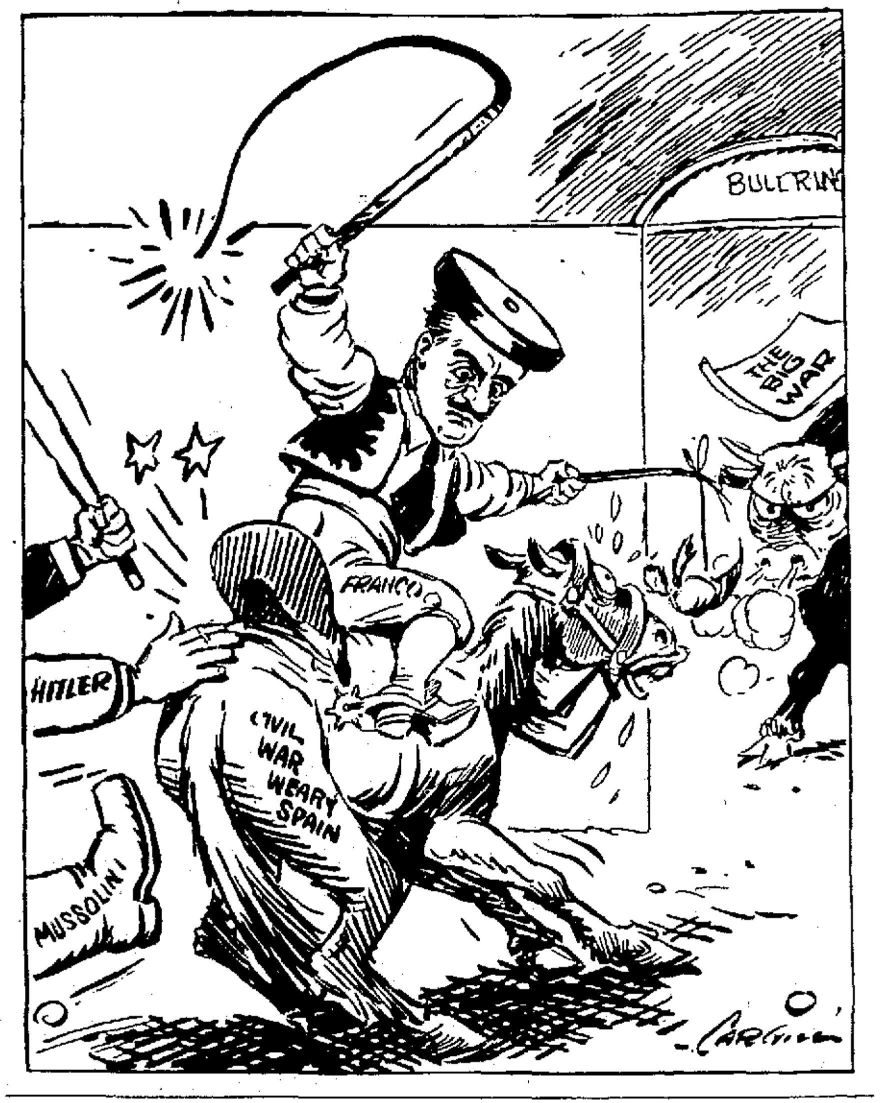
HEADIN' FOR THE LAST ROUNDUP



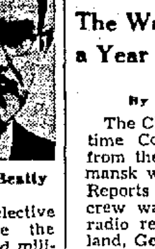
Our Arms Program

Aimed To Make Us World's Mightiest Armored Power.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—When the first number comes out of the fish bowl in the draft lottery on Oct. 29, the United States embarks on a peacetime program that in five years may increase our military might five-fold, on the average, and make us the heaviest-armored nation on earth.

That's the real meaning behind the simple business of pulling capsules out of a clear glass jar.



Morgan Beatty

The draft itself will contribute the most powerful element in the program blueprinted for congress by the army and navy. For, if continued for the five-year period prescribed by the selective service law, it will provide the nation with 4,000,000 trained military reserves.

Those reserves will cost a cool billion dollars a year, or five billion dollars by 1945, not counting equipment, but adding in food and transportation.

Our first line army will number more than 1,200,000 men. It's built on the plan calling for a five-pronged instrument of war—a foreign garrison force of 75,000, a coast defense force of 50,000, an air force of 150,000, a mobile Army for the continental United States of 800,000 men, and an overhead force (hospitals, administration, replacements, etc., of 125,000).

The reserve will consist of the national guard, assuming it serves only one year, and the selective service men who have served their year.

Might In the Air

The biggest step-up in military might will be the air force. From the 7,000 planes we now have in both the army and the navy, we will have jumped to 40,000 planes. We'll have 400,000 men to fix them and run them in 1945, instead of the less than 100,000 now available in both branches.

Naval manpower will jump from about 190,000 to more than 500,000 and tonnage from nearly two million tons of fighting ships, to three and a half million tons in 1945.

The program may be altered at any time. The best observers on Capitol Hill, for instance, suggest that a sudden end of hostilities abroad that would also end the threat of totalitarian powers would send most of this expansion program into the legislative wastebasket within a week or two.

Other experts suggest that the immediate threat of war, on the other hand, would find the program stepped up in speed and scope. For instance, it would be feasible to plan for a first line Army of 4,000,000 men within two years, if the nation decided to go to war with a definite enemy at a certain time.

Good Insurance, but Costly

The cost of this mighty instrument of war to the taxpayer will be astronomical. No competent bookkeepers have dared yet to reckon it. All you can do is gauge fragmentary costs. It is possible to say, for instance, that congress has authorized defense expenditures of about $17,000,000. That may keep parts of the plan moving for about two years. The cost of the drafted army alone will range close to a billion dollars a year. On that basis the total cost might range around $40,000,000 in five years.

Assuming that this mighty armed force will not be used to fight, what is its value to the nation?

Primarily it's insurance—at a very high premium. When the ambassador of a foreign power addresses our secretary of state in 1945, he may be talking to the representative of the world's No. 1 military power.

The City of Flint, U. S. Maritime Commission liner, sailed from the Russian port of Murmansk with its crew and cargo. Reports said a German prize crew was in control. A later radio report said the Deutschland, German pocket battleship, had taken charge of the American ship.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, in a report before the House of Commons, said five German ships had been captured in recent days and one had been scuttled by her own crew. The admiralty did not elaborate on the report.

President Roosevelt, in a broadcast from the White House, said again this nation would maintain its neutral stand and remain to do so.

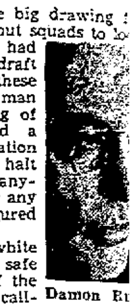
Draft Raiders

We're Assured an Unpleasant tom of World War Will Not Used To Round Up Slackers.

By DAMON RUNYON

COL. ARTHUR V. McDERMOTT, direc selective service administration in New City, says that for the present at least ther be none of the draft raids in the big cit marked conscription in 1917. His decision haps wise, but it will cost Broadway m the excitement of the stirring days of 23 ago.



Damon R

In those days, after the big drawing army, the authorities put out squads to lo fellows of service age who had failed to register, or draft dodgers. Members of these squads could accost any man who struck them as being of service age and demand a showing of his registration card. They could, and did, halt fellows in the street or anywhere else and could enter any place in which they figured dodgers might be lurking.

Only a man with long white whiskers was entirely safe from the interrogations of the draft raiders, as they were called. If a young fellow had inadvertently le card at home in a pocket of his other coat h immediately enveloped in a most uncomfo cloud of suspicion. He had to go home escort and get it, or find somebody to vou him whose standing and integrity satisfie raiders that he was telling the truth.

IN NEW YORK CITY, the squads would p to restaurants, bar rooms, pool room other spots where gents commonly asser and they never gave advance notice of popping.

They would walk around truculently for a display of registration cards, and manner often raised the star-spangled h of the American disposition. The raide many a piece of sarcasm from the citizen battles were not infrequent.

It was a species of official intrusion o vacies with which Americans are quite fa and never entirely fancy, but which they grudgingly accepted as part of the times, a later accepted the raids of the prohibition They felt that the draft raids were nec but that like most official excursions i country they were carried off with too bluster and inconsideration of public righ convenience.

That the draft raiders dug up dodgers is no doubt, though whether the number fied the ostentation and confusion of the r a debatable question. It was a startling e ence to be in the middle of a big beer and squad of raiders come lunging in cryi cards. One night in Jack Doyle's billiards emy on Broadway, we saw Hype Igoe, the writer, blow a shot in kelly pool that $4.80 to him because the raiders roared in he was driving. The excitement of the trance boggled his aim.

SOMETIMES the raiders would even private clubs on their expeditions. member a visit they made one night to t Volney club when it was located in roo over a restaurant in West 47th st, and w ticed that with the raiding squad was a way character known as "The Louse Kid

We knew that "The Louse Kid" was fellow around and we wondered at his ence with the draft raiders.

We thought it probably due to curiosi we later discovered a more sinister reaso seems he had struck up acquaintance wit of the raiders and followed them around i raids through the Broadway area to spo games which were rather numerous in days. Then he would inform certain frie his over on the west side of the location games, and the friends would go and st the players. The L. K. got 10 per cent. not much, but we suppose it was a living.

COL. McDERMOTT says if it turns out few weeks that there are a lot of slac may have to do something about it. He even if the old raiding squads should vived, the crap shooters of New York pr will not have to worry about the old Kid.

It seems that one evening he took his cent back to the very game that had been on his info and was laying a hundred against a fellow named Passaic Red ma four, when the bank note tossed on the t the kid was recognized by Red as one th been removed from his own person by the ups. Only a person who is a United States citizen or who lives in the United States or its Territories or possessions may be regarded as a dependent.

Based on the information contained in this Questionnaire and on other information which the Local Board may receive, the Local Board will determine whether the "dependent" is an individual who is dependent in fact for support in a reasonable manner in view of such individual's circumstances on income earned by the registrant by his work in a business, occupation, or employment.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

Rescue Party

THE sun was setting behind the western hills before the three were missed from the monastery. The gates had been closed for the night and the old abbot had sent to inquire if the child were in the visitor's apartment.

Temu and Chan, just returning, discovered the girls' absence; Temu noticed they had worn their caps and taken the binoculars from the shelf. Nothing else was missing.

"Run away?" asked Chan.

Temu shook his head. "Gone walking."

As they went into the courtyard, others appeared looking for the child. Then a serving monk remembered seeing him, the Tara, and the red-headed one walk up the narrow alley between the houses to the north gate.

Bula, who has been hanging around the stables all day, appeared and told of noticing the trio on the hill back of the monastery early in the afternoon. No one had seen them return.

The tremulous, old abbot began to weep lest he had lost his elder brother by death a second time. Temu ordered Bula to saddle horses and follow him while he and one of the monks hastened toward the north gate.

In the fading light they climbed the hill to the spot where Lynn, attempting to return, had been intercepted. Bula, riding one horse and leading two others, overtook them.

Temu and the lama mounted and followed the tracks around the hill till they came upon the boy's scull cap lying on the ground with a clod inside to hold it against the wind. Under the clod lay a piece of paper bearing Arabic letters torn from a poster depicting a view of the Kaaba.

"Mohammedans," Temu muttered, looking across the hills westward to the Moslem stronghold looming against the fading skyline like a grim and forbidding isle of darkness.

Bula was for going on, just they three, and storming the stronghold, "They'd like us to try it," commented Temu. "The whole force at the monastery could not take that fort with the weapons we have. And perhaps that is not the thing we want to do."

He sat for a while in deep thought, the others watching him patiently. Presently, he roused and spoke: "Come with me!" Then, whirling his horse, he hastened back to the path and through the north gate.

Stopping a moment, he reassured the old abbot, and ordered every available fighting man to mount and follow him. Then he rode on down the canyon to the plain, where, as he expected, a regiment of Chinese infantry on its way from the south to strengthen the garrison at Tusin, had bivouacked for the night. They were rather a sorry lot of conscripts; half in uniform and the others wearing their workaday blue.

The commander had already dropped into his customary opium stupor. His aide, Major Tsin, an alert and soldiery young fellow, saluted Temu and walked with him among the men squatted about their tiny fires. Few had new and decent weapons, although they had brought along an ancient cannon, but no ammunition.

Temu presented credentials to Major Tsin and spoke crisply. "I shall take command of your men for the time being. They are to make a forced march west to the Mohammedan stronghold of Kiahyu. We'll leave a guard about your commander's tent."

The major spoke doubtfully. "These men are untrained. None of their ancestors, when called upon to bear arms, were ever expected to march or fight at night."

"They'll obey me."

Born to Command

At a second quick scrutiny of Temu's face the major seemed inclined to agree. There were men who could mould circumstances; Temu Darin was one of these men.

The next instant the company of Mongols and Tibetans from the lamassery in cavalry formation broke from the mouth of the canyon and came cantering across the plain in warlike array. They had thrown aside their religious robes and taken up gay banners, swords, and rifles hastily blessed in the temple.

At sight of them the Chinese soldiers seized their weapons and began to huddle. Temu jumped to a commanding position on the cannon carriage and spoke swiftly in Chinese.

There was no muttering, no delay—only the temporary confusion of a timid people hastening to obey the command of one they recognized as leader. A detachment of horsemen took charge of the cannon. Another was detailed to stop at the monastery for whatever could be used as ammunition for the weapons.

Temu gave the command and the soldiers began their forced march with lama outriders surrounding them.

Morning saw the Mohammedan fortress surrounded by a reinforcement of foot soldiers and patrolled by mounted men, the one piece of artillery trained on the great iron-studded wooden gate in the south wall.

Temu gave the command to fire. The rumble of falling brick and the shriek of splintering wood followed the dull roar of the cannon. An upper corner of the gate disappeared in a jagged hole and a part of the lower wall fell away.

Surprised defenders armed with ancient flintlocks swarmed the walls dismayed—not at the sight of foot soldiers backed by mounted men completely surrounding the stronghold, but at the one piece of artillery that would rip out the strongest wooden gate and shatter brick walls.

Temu raised a flag of truce. The simple but civilized Chinese understood this kind of warfare despite the strain of fanatical Turkoman blood in their veins. The leaders met in the roadway before the gate and arrange the terms of surrender. Major Tsin, with a small detail of soldiers, would take control of the town.

The people had never known such a peace. There was no demand that their chiefs be executed or property be confiscated. The hungry would be fed, the naked clothed. Disarmed, the inhabitants might retain their homes and go about their business. Followed by a picked guard of mounted men, Temu rode into the town.

Rescue

At the sound of the cannon that morning there had been a fight between dissenting factions. One group desired the prisoners killed at once in a frantic, senseless feeling of revenge. Another wished to keep them for bargaining purposes. The latter won in the scuffle that followed and managed to conduct the captives inside the courtyard and to secure the gate against the mob crying for their death.

Peggy began weeping afresh at the sight of Temu, but the strange, set silence in Lynn's face really frightened him. He put an affectionate arm around the little Buddha and patted Peggy's shoulder, assuring her that everything was all right now, though his eyes were all for Lynn. He led them to a room in the magistrate's house and had servants bring water for bathing, clean clothing and food.

Later Lynn set the breakfast table, garbed in a rich, blue satin gown from the wardrobe of the magistrate's number-one wife. Peggy in green, and little Tsong in yellow, had somewhat recovered their spirits. Peggy begged Temu to annihilate the village. "These people are worse than beasts!" she cried vehemently. "They're not fit to live!"

Lynn quietly toyed with her food, her blue eyes shadowed, her face colorless, the chill of an infinite desolation in her bones. Watching her, Temu explained to the other:

"I am a soldier, and in this age, the work of a soldier is to preserve life and protect the people. I grant you they are beasts—poor, starving beasts at bay—but your were protected by powers you do not comprehend."

Peggy sniffed. "That's being sentimental. One would think you didn't have the courage to kill them."

"Courage?" he inquired absently. "There are two kinds of courage. I hope I have either as the occasion may require." He smiled and touched Lynn's arm to attract her attention, wishing to draw her interest away from that inner obsession that seemed to possess her. "Lynn," he asked, "haven't you seen me display both the courage of violence and the courage of perseverance?"

"Yes, Temu," she answered passively.

"Then, defend me with Peggy."

She smiled vaguely and said nothing. He rose and sent the others away to rest and ordered the table removed. Then he came and sat on the edge of the kang beside Lynn.

"What is it?" he asked gently.

She raised her eyelids as if they were leaded and gave him a half-blind, trance-like stare.

"Those pitiful folk," she murmured. "Eating grass and the soil of the hills. Clawing and fighting and wailing, lest they lose their pitiful lives."

"Go on," he said.

"Assailed by misery and haunted by visions of madness and death." She looked down at her cold hands folded on her lap. "I joined them last night; ate with them, felt their sorrow and despair. And somehow, I've lost the will to live. Something strange has happened to me. I can't come back."

A spasm of fear crossed Temu's face. He took one of her hands in his strong, warm clasp.

"Listen to me, Lynn. Life and I claim you. We call you back. You are tired; you've come through emotional experiences that would try people calloused and accustomed to them. Last night you identified yourself too closely with these suffering humans and let the spirit of despair take hold of you. Now it is morning; the sun is shining and I am here to feed them and protect you. I call you back.

Seeing his words made no impresion, he gripped her arms and cried, "You must come out of this, Lynn! Would it do any good if I shook you—if I beat you?"

Two tears rolled down her cheeks to the corners of her mouth. "I am beaten, Temu."

"I'm not," he said, and took her in his arms, kissing her eyes, her mouth, her throat. He drew her back against the cushions and held her close to his strong, warm body, cajoling her back to life with tender words and caresses.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Agrees Not to Repeat His Confession to the Queen—and the Royal Romance Is Safe.

"WHAT ELSE could I do?" Philip Veritzen asked defensively. "In all fairness I couldn't keep an awful thing like that a secret from her."

"Of course you couldn't," Lillian agreed quickly, "if some other person had to shoulder the blame for what you did when your mind was affected. But there is nobody in the world to be hurt except you and Olga."

"Yes, she will be hurt," he said sadly.

"No, she won't," Lillian retorted, "for you're not going to tell her anything. Just look at the thing sensibly for a second. If you spill all these beans to Olga, you'll sow seeds of doubt in her mind, although she may not be conscious of it. Now you just sit still in that chair, and we'll bring her over here now, and if you speak a word out of turn to her, I'll flay you alive inch by inch. Promise you'll keep mum!"

"How can I do anything else?" he retorted, smiling in spite of himself. Then as some feeling deep within him asserted itself, he turned to me, as from the first of the colloquy I had feared he would.

"Is this your opinion also?" he said, "that I should not confess this to Olga?"

I felt Lillian's eyes 'boring holes" in me, and remembered the promise she had extracted that I was not to let my "Puritan conscience" get in the way of the things—then nebulous—that she meant to say to Philip Veritzen.

A Weak Retort

"I always have found Lillian's advice wise and sound," I parried.

He looked at me steadily for an instant, started to speak, thought better of it, and Lillian put a compelling hand upon my elbow.

"There you have it, on unimpeachable authority," she said. "Now stop inviting your soul, Phil, and get yourself in shape to welcome Olga. Come along, Madge. We'll go and get her."

She swung me around and hurried me out of my room, which Philip Veritzen was to occupy during the siege of the farmhouse. But instead of proceeding directly to Olga's room, she fairly pushed me along the corridor to her own room, and put me in a chair. Then she closed and locked the door and, coming back, towered over me.

"I ought to 'slap you down'," she said sternly.

"Why! What have I done?" I countered feebly, although I knew very well what she meant.

"Don't pretend ignorance!" she snapped. "I told you to throttle that Puritan conscience, but when Phil asked your opinion about his confession—he probably thought with truth that your soul is whiter, purer, and loftier than mine and more to be trusted in a moral emergency—what did you do? Did you back me up? No, you only bleated out a left-handed compliment to me that would not have deceived a six-months-old baby, and certainly didn't fool Phil."

"I didn't mean to spoil things," I said miserably, "and the worst of it is that one part of me agreed with what you said."

"You'd better cultivate that part," she said, "and let the other atrophy. It's a relic of days that are long gone, and it's sure a handicap in this modern world."

No Harm Done

She had ranted herself back to good humor, and she suddenly turned her irresistible cheery smile on me.

"You know I don't mean half that I say," she said, "and I'm sure there's no harm done. Phil's soul isn't so dauntless that he isn't willing to welcome my dictum that he must confess nothing to Olga. So the royal romance is safe! How about it? Are you up to a call on the 'queen'?"

Her mimicry of Katie, as always, brought a smile to my lips, and I rose with alacrity.

"Do you think I'd miss it?" I answered.

"One never knows," she murmured provocatively, but I ignored the gibe, and together we went down the corridor to the room where the exiled queen of Transvania awaited us.

This editorial, written by Henry R. Luce, editor of Life magazine, is reproduced here because it expresses a devotion to Americanism better than we have been able to express it ourselves. We ask you to read it carefully—read it aloud to your wife, or to your husband, and to your friends, in the interests of your children and our children.

—THE MARION STAR

THIS GREAT MOMENT

A STATEMENT BY THE EDITOR OF LIFE

IN this place last May, I published an article urging Americans to get ready to fight. That was the first time in my 17 years as an editor that I undertook to urge my views upon my readers. I did so last May for two reasons: first, because what I had to say was important; second, because what I had to say was not being said with sufficient honesty and strength by enough other people.

The response to what I said had a totally unexpected result. It proved that there was no necessity to urge my views but that there was great need to give public expression to certain basic convictions which were already forming in the minds and hearts of the overwhelming majority of LIFE's readers.

Now, in this fateful October, many readers of LIFE have urged me to state my views on the Presidential election. They say that this election is an event of incalculable importance in the life of the American people and the American Republic. I agree. They say that for many reasons, including the confusion of war, many citizens are not giving enough thought to this election and many others are thinking so hard they get going in circles and that therefore every man in America who might be listened to, ought to speak out. I agree. They say, furthermore, that the readers of LIFE can determine the outcome of this election. I agree. They can.

Nevertheless, I believe that the great majority of the readers of LIFE would not want me to "come out" for one candidate or the other. The readers of LIFE know that their magazine does not hesitate to express its views on all manner of topics. They know that in every issue, and on nearly every page of every issue, LIFE gives credit where credit is due, points with pride, views with alarm. They know that LIFE is deeply concerned with the problems of this nation at this time. It pulls no punches. But the readers of LIFE also know that in setting forth these problems and in discussing them, LIFE does so in a strictly non-partisan spirit. I think that is a good way for LIFE to be and I have faith that it can keep on being that way right through the grim and difficult years ahead of us.

Paradoxically, therefore, the readers of LIFE, as I understand them, want their Editor to talk with them in deepest sincerity about this election; but they don't want him to tell them how to vote. It is a difficult assignment. Here goes.

* * *

This is the most important American election since 1860. It is more than that—it is probably the most important election ever held anywhere in the world under free and unrestricted suffrage. The outcome of this election may well determine the conditions of human life for the rest of this century not only on this continent but on this entire planet. In all the brief history of the ballot it has always made a difference which man and which principles were voted in and voted out. And this time it makes more difference than ever— because this may be the last time in this century that free men will determine what men and what principles shall govern them.

With the above statement, no thinking American can disagree. But it is evident that a great many Americans do not feel in their bones the overwhelming importance of this election. And therefore what I have just said is worth saying on behalf of all LIFE's readers even if nothing else is.

* * *

The highest values in human life are at stake in this election because the struggle regarding them has come to a catastrophic climax in world affairs. But these values are not only at stake "over there." They are at stake here.

If the world today is an unpleasant, unproductive, unhopeful and dangerous place to live in, we Americans are just as much to blame for it as any people anywhere. For, as a practical matter, our problems—the problems we have failed to solve for our own good—have actually been very simple compared with the problems of the people of Europe and Asia. And, as a spiritual matter, we Americans ought to have known better than anybody else how to preserve and expand freedom and justice and brotherhood. Who should know about freedom if we do not know about freedom? Who should know about justice if we do not know about justice? Who should know about brotherhood if we do not know about brotherhood?

And so I say that these values are at stake in this election because they are at stake here—not only "over there."

* * *

Now that we know that these values have been betrayed, now that we are resolved that they shall no longer be betrayed by us, what is it exactly we have to do about them in an election booth? We cannot vote for Freedom and Justice and Brotherhood—we can only vote for a couple of parties and a couple of candidates. Surely for the reinvigoration of our ideals it is not to the ballot box we must go—but rather to Church and to Work.

There are three things which an aroused and a free people have to do on election day:

First, what they have to do is to vote merely for the sake of voting—for that is the one thing we can all do together—all of us, rich and poor, wise and foolish, Easterners and Westerners, farmers and city folk. I am not going to urge you to vote. I am simply going to express my opinion that anyone who does not vote at this election is a traitor to the Republic. And never knowingly will I shake hands with him or sit down to a meal with him. For, in the hour of gravest peril, he failed to do the only specific duty which is laid upon him as a citizen of this Republic. No one has a "duty" to be President, no one even has a "duty" to be a soldier until summoned by our Commander in Chief, but the humblest or laziest member of our society has a duty to vote.

Second, at the ballot box especially in a national election, a free people can affirm their common allegiance to the ideals from which springs their Freedom. To affirm—that is the only important thing you can do once you have done your duty by going to the polling place. Bill Smith may affirm by voting Republican. Joe Jones may affirm by voting Democratic. The question is—did they, did you affirm? No one will ever know whether or not you did affirm—no one except yourself and your most intimate friends.

If you vote because you think that you personally (or your group) are going to be better off if one side or the other wins—that is a very good reason for voting. But that is not—"to affirm."

You will not be affirming your ideals if you vote because you think you will personally gain something by it. You will not be affirming your ideals if you vote out of ignorance. (In this country no one is obliged to be ignorant.) You will not be affirming your ideals if you make your choice for a President of all America on the basis of some local issue or some local prejudice.

The most concrete thing you must affirm is that you believe in all of America, one union, indivisible, now and forever. This is your one chance to behave as a citizen of all America. If you vote only as an inhabitant of Sedalia, Mo. or of the Mountain States or of The Bronx, you are unworthy of the title of Citizen of America. Is America too big for us? Let us try in this election to grow up to it.

Then how is affirmation made? This is how I am going to make my affirmation. As I cast my ballot I am going to say to myself: "I am not wise enough to be absolutely sure who ought to be elected President but I cast this ballot solely in the belief that it is for the good of all America—and for the advancement of Freedom and Justice and Goodwill on Earth."

Third. At the ballot box we can fulfill the one duty we have in common —which is merely to vote. At the ballot box we can affirm our ideals by voting in the light of our highest ideals and for no other reason. Finally, of course, we have to do one more thing—we have to choose. Shall it be — Roosevelt or Willkie? We cannot get away from it. It's tough. All our sense of duty, all our theories, all our ideals—with them and in spite of them, we have to get right down to cases—shall I vote for this guy or that guy? Maybe after all, it doesn't make any difference. I repeat: it makes a terrific difference. In all our history it has always made a difference. In all the brief history of the ballot it has always made a difference which man and which principles were voted in and voted out. And this time it makes more difference than ever — because this may be the last time in this century that free men will determine what men and what principles shall govern them.

Whether or not we and our children will be able to vote as free men in 1944 and in 1964 depends upon whether this Republic survives as a constitutional democracy in the next four years. Whether or not this Republic survives as a constitutional democracy depends upon just two things:

A. It depends upon whether or not we truly believe in constitutional representative government. If we truly believe, then we will have a passionate will to make it work. Therefore, let every LIFE reader-voter ask himself and herself: "How do I best express my faith in constitutional representative government? How do I best express my determination to make it work? By voting for Roosevelt or by voting for Willkie?"

B. Everything else boils down to just one word: Efficiency. And it is perhaps by the word Efficiency that the man or woman who loves America can best make his decision at this moment in history.

Efficiency is not a very pleasant word. But this is not a very pleasant world. Efficiency cannot by itself build a pleasant world. But if this Republic does not very quickly become considerably more efficient, it will certainly be destroyed. This Republic cannot be destroyed by Adolph Hitler. On the contrary, if Adolph should blow up tomorrow and if this nation continued to be inefficient, the constitutional Republic of the United States could not possibly endure for more than ten years.

A fellow-editor with whom I was discussing what I had in mind to write urged me not to use the word "efficiency." He said it is not a very elevated or noble word. And many people will misunderstand it. Maybe it isn't and maybe they will. Nevertheless I give you this word as the password and secret weapon by which this Republic will either find or lose salvation. Let us by all means, on November 5, stand in the polling booth as if we stood on holy ground. But standing there let us acquit ourselves not as fools and boobs but as adult, self-reliant, determined and efficient men and women. American efficiency need not be German efficiency—indeed it is utterly impossible that it could be. American efficiency can be and must be American efficiency —the happiest, freest, greatest efficiency the world has ever known.

* * *

I like to talk about the personalities of Messrs. Roosevelt and Willkie— they are both extremely interesting. I like to talk about the principles which they represent because while they agree on many important details of contemporary life, I think they represent fundamentally divergent principles which, in triumph or defeat, will ultimately determine man's way of life not only on this continent but on this planet. But without any opinionated discussion of the personalities or the principles involved in this campaign, I can state what I believe to be without any question the most concrete and specific point in this campaign and that is:

Which man is more likely to contribute to the achievement of a mighty efficiency in this mighty land?

Please note, I said "contribute." Neither of these men is going to make us efficient. Nobody is going to make America efficient until we become slaves. The only thing a President can do is to contribute, in larger measures than the rest of us, to the efficiency or the inefficiency of the people.

Mr. Roosevelt is not going to save America. Mr. Willkie is not going to save America. America is going to be saved by millions of Americans—by the readers of LIFE—or else it is not going to be saved.

The choice before us is the choice of an architect of a new efficiency for America—an efficiency in war, in peace and in all the twilight zones through which we must pass. That is the immediate problem. It is a problem much too big for you or for me to solve alone. It is a problem which it is our most precious privilege and duty to begin to solve together on November 5. May God help us to be wise and brave in order that we and our children may be forever free.

HENRY R. LUCE

Lewis Throws Full Support To Willkie

... that 20,000,000 people in the United States are able to spend only 5 cents per meal per person. "This in a land of plenty, with its agricultural granaries, overflowing with surplus farm commodities, which the farmer is unable to sell. Where now are the [illegible] for the 'ill-housed, ill-clothed and ill-fed?'"

"If Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected," he said, "it will mean that the members of the Congress of Industrial Organizations have rejected my advice and recommendation. I will accept the result as being the equivalent of a vote of no confidence and will retire as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, at its own convention in November."

"This nation," he said, "should hardly endow any politician or statesman with a brief of authority that, for all practical purposes runs in perpetuity."

Paid Price in Blood

"Our forebears," he added, "paid the price in blood, agony, privation and sorrow, requisite for the founding of this republic.

"Are we now to cast away that priceless liberty, which is our heritage? Are we to yield to the appetite for power and the vaunting ambitions of a man who plays with the lives of human beings for a pastime?

"If President Roosevelt is re-established in office in the forthcoming election, he will answer to no man, including the congress, for his executive acts, that may create a dictatorship in this land."

Lewis enumerated a list of reasons for his opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's re-election.

The first, he said, is that his "motivation and objective" is "war." Of the third-term issue, he said: "America needs no superman."

Quoting from a speech he made in January of this year saying that a coalition had been formed between labor and the administration and that a "political coalition presupposes a pre-election good faith between the coalition interests," he added:

Decries War Boom

"The Democratic party and its leadership have not preserved that faith." Then, departing from the quotation of the previous speech he said it had never been refuted and that "there is no spokesman in the Democratic party, or in the Roosevelt administration intellectually capable of this task."

Indicting the administration for failing to solve the unemployment problem, he said it was "trying to create prosperity by the making of guns and lethal weapons."

This, he added, points to increased volume of production but "forgets to state that the productivity of the individual worker has vastly increased since 1929 and that increased volume does not correspondingly mean increased employment of workers."

There are, he said, 9,115,000 men and women in America "still unemployed," and the national defense program will still leave 5,000,000 out of work.

Concerned About Market

He questioned where the country would sell its goods when the nation has returned to peaceful pursuits and asked what was being done by the present administration "to safeguard our population from such an impending economic disaster."

Turning from the reasons for his opposition to Roosevelt to the reasons for his supporting Willkie he asserted:

"He is a gallant American. He has opened his heart to the American people. He is not an aristocrat. He has the common touch. He was born in the briar and not to the purple. He has worked with his hands and has known pangs of hunger. He has had experience in various fields of American enterprise and is an administrator and an executive."

Lewis said some sources had suggested he should not indorse Willkie because the latter's campaign workers were said to include Tom Girdler, president of Republic Steel, Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel and Ernest T. Weir of National Steel, with both of whom the C. I. O. has been at bitter odds.

"This is specious reasoning," Lewis continued. "One could as well suggest that the communicants of a particular faith should leave their church because of the presence of a hypocrite in their midst. Aside from this, these gentlemen must possess some virtue, because President Roosevelt has awarded them many fat and lucrative government contracts, at the expense of the public purse.

"I may also add, in passing, that it is a reasonable hope that these gentlemen, acting in their corporate capacities, will soon execute collective bargaining contracts with the C.I.O."

Lewis proceeded to a series of laudatory remarks about Willkie. The Republican nominee, he said, had asserted:

". . . That he will put the unemployed to work; that he will abolish pauperism. He has said that he will increase the national income by working to increase the wages and incomes of the unemployed.

"He says that he will enlist the representative brains of the nation to do this job. He says that he will take the representatives of labor into his cabinet and into the policy-making agencies of government, to assist and cooperate in the economic rehabilitation of America.

Cites Economy Offer

"He has said that he will reduce the cost of operation of our government, and thus reduce the taxes imposed upon individual citizens.

"He has said that he believes in and will enforce the right of labor to organize and will promote collective bargaining between industry and labor.

"He has said that he will preserve and maintain all social legislation previously enacted for the protection of labor and any other citizen.

"Wendell Willkie has given his guarantee to the American people that if elected president he will not send the sons of American mothers and American fathers to fight in foreign wars. He avers that he will not use the power and influence of this mammoth nation to promote war, but rather exercise that power and that influence to abate war and promote and maintain peace between nations.

"This statement of principles and objectives entitles Mr. Willkie to the support of every thoughtful citizen.

"Can he accomplish such a task, many will ask. It is my considered judgment that if Wendell Willkie is elected president, this task can, and will, be done."

Other highlights of Lewis' address with reference to what he termed "an appalling drift toward war":

Concern Centers in Europe

"In the face of the economic debacle in America, many of our statesmen are more concerned and agitated over the political quarrels in Europe.

"War has always been the device of the politically despairing and intellectually sterile statesmen. It provides employment in the gun factories and begets enormous profits for those already rich. It kills off the vigorous males who, if permitted to live, might question the financial exploitation of the race. Above all, war perpetuates in imperishable letters on the scroll of fame and history the names of its political creators and managers.

"Those who hear these words, and have studied the public addresses of the President, from his Chicago 'quarantine speech' to his Charlottesville 'stab-in-the-back' address, and thence to Dayton and Philadelphia, will understand his motivation and his objective. It is war. His every act leads one to this inescapable conclusion.

"The President has said that he hates war and will work for peace, but his acts do not match his words. I am opposed to any involvement of our country in foreign wars. I believe that every thoughtful and normal citizen is similarly opposed. They are willing, as I am willing, to contribute everything for any necessary defense of our geographical integrity, our families, our possessions, our liberties and our lives.

Charges Faith Broken

The flaming horror of the current war now engulfs many nations. Reason would seem to prompt a course of national action designed to restrict and abate the war, rather than to expand and intensify its scope and destruction."

Charging the "Democratic party has not preserved the faith" with labor, Lewis said:

"In the last three years, labor has not been given, representation in the cabinet, nor in the administrative or policy making agencies of government. The current administration has not sought nor seriously entertained the advice or views of labor upon the question of national unemployment or lesser questions affecting domestic economy, internal taxation, foreign trade, military and naval expansion, relations with foreign nations or the issues of war or peace.

"Labor today has no point of contact with the Democratic administration in powder, except for casual and occasional interviews which are granted its individual leaders.

"In the congress, the unrestrained baiting and defaming of labor by the Democratic majority has become a pastime, never subject to rebuke by the titular or actual leaders of the party."

A.F.L. Leader Critical

One of the first reactions from Democratic campaign ranks came, meanwhile, from Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (A.F.L.) and chairman of the national Democratic labor bureau.

In a speech in Chicago, Tobin said last night that the head of the C.I.O., coming out for Willkie, had aligned himself with those who have "tried to crucify him and crucify me."

As the competition for labor's political favor was intensified, President Roosevelt faced a week-end of speech writing and traveling while Willkie undertook a swift round of campaigning in New York.

Leaving Washington Sunday night, Mr. Roosevelt will speak in Madison Square Garden Monday night after a day of visits in the New York metropolitan area and northern New Jersey. The White House added a tentative speaking date to his schedule in an announcement saying that he "probably" would visit Massachusetts and deliver a major political address in Boston on the night of Oct. 30.

Auto Workers Divided

In Detroit, signs of divided reaction to the Lewis speech were in evidence among leaders of the United Automobile Workers of America, which claims a membership of 400,000 and is second in size of C.I.O. unions only to the United Mine Workers, which Lewis himself heads.

The reaction of top-ranking mine workers' officials was not immediately made known, but in the West Virginia coal fields, at Welch, Jess Acquino, a U.M.W. organizer, said that West Virginia U.M.W. members are "going down the line 100 per cent for President Roosevelt."

Of the automobile union leaders, Leo Lamotte, a member of the international executive board, said that "to me, John L. Lewis always has been correct until proven wrong. And I don't think he's wrong now."

On the other hand, R. J. Thomas, president of the U.A.W.-C.I.O., had said in a speech at Detroit Thursday night that all the union's members "and their families" would vote for Mr. Roosevelt, and last night a Detroit local of the organization wired Lewis that he had "betrayed the membership."

Regulations for Inducting Draftees Into Army Ordered by President

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—President Roosevelt has prescribed regulations for inducting draftees into the army, allowing every man selected for military training at least five days in which to settle his affairs before being inducted.

The regulations, last of six volumes prescribed for the operation of the draft, require army corps commanders to give the governors of the several states at least 21 days' notice of the number of men who will be called from each state on various dates.

Generally, the regulations set forth this procedure for inducting trainees:

The national selective service director will notify each governor periodically of the draft quotas, credits and debits, of his state and the number of men to be furnished by the stae. The governors will distribute those quotas among the local draft boards in those states.

After the governors have been notified of the number of men called at various times from each state, they will issue a call to local boards for their share of the men to be inducted.

The local boards will select men to fill the call in the order in which their draft numbers are drawn in the national lottery here next Tuesday. Men who have volunteered for immediate induction will be called first, without regard to the order numbers. No registrant will be called while an appeal from his draft classification is pending.

For each group of selectees, the local boards will appoint a leader and assistant leaders who will have authority to deliver the group to an army induction station and to handle all transportation, food and lodging tickets furnished to the group. Army men will meet the selectees upon their arrival at the induction station.

Each local board will post a list of men selected for induction and furnish a copy to local newspapers.

Any selected man who is so far from his local board that it would be a hardship for him to report for delivery to an induction station may go to the nearest board, not his own, and asked to be sent to the station.

Replacements will be furnished, within five days, for men who fail to report for delivery or are rejected at the induction station because they are not acceptable to the army. Men who are rejected will be given transportation back home. They will be reclassed by their local draft boards and be taken out of Class 1-A, which includes those fit and available for service.

Troop Officers To Begin Instruction Course Monday

Officers and non-commissioned officers of Co. D, and Headquarters Detachment of Marion will be among 400 of the 37th division who will begin a week's instruction Monday morning in eight phases of army work, according to a news report from Hattiesburg, Miss.

Lieut. Col. W. S. Chambers of Columbus will be the senior instructor in charge of the school. Following the training period for the officers, classes will be held in each company for the next 13 weeks.

Subjects to be studied include arms of rifle company; heavy weapons, including anti-mechanized and anti-aircraft technique; signal communication; combat intelligence; operation and maintenance of motor vehicles; divisional artillery; functions of combat engineers and functions of chemical service.

The first week's course will be attended by one officer and one or two non-commissioned officers from each company, battery and combat battalion headquarters detachment for each of its weapons or combat functions.

While officers prepared for the course next week, basic training was inaugurated Thursday. Throughout the Camp Shelby area the companies were marching, saluting and "getting the feel of the rifle," the news report stated.

Marion's two units, accompanied by Delaware and Lancaster units, were scheduled to arrive at camp yesterday afternoon.

Companies E and F of the 166th Infantry, eight officers and 164 men from Marysville and New Lexington, also arrived at camp yesterday, according to a report from the public relations bureau of the 37th Division.

"STOWAWAY" SPANKED

By The United Press

MONTROSE, Colo.—Three-year-old Jimmie Morris had recovered today from his 61-mile ride to Grand Junction, Colo., while perched on a narrow board on an automobile rear bumper. The "stowaway" climbed upon the 10-inch wide rack and clung while the car traveled at 50 to 60 miles per hour in a cold, drizzling rain. He fell off in Grand Junction, where police notified his parents and overtook the car driver.

CAMPAIGN IN OHIO IS EASED UP TODAY

Bricker in Michigan To Aid National Ticket.

By The Associated Press

Ohio's political candidates eased up a bit today in preparation for a vigorous final week of the 1940 campaign.

Gov. Bricker sidetracked his own reelection bid temporarily to discuss national issues at a Republican rally in Lansing Mich., while his opponent, former Gov. Davey, Democratic nominee for a third term, scheduled appearances in Harrison and Cincinnati.

At Eaton yesterday, Governor Bricker declared "Ohio has met the challenge to put its house in order, not on order."

Davey, at Norwood, said Bricker's administration of relief was "brutal" and referred to criticism on that count last winter by Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, who is running for United States senator on the Republican ticket.

Burton, in the seventh of a series of radio interviews, discussed government ownership of business. He was questioned by Lewis B. Rock, president and publisher of the Dayton Journal and Herald.

"I believe in striving to improve, as far as possible, the ethics and standards of privately owned and operated enterprises serving the public and to improve the efficiency of the governmental supervision and regulation of their service," Burton said.

John McSweeney of Wooster, Democratic senatorial nominee, reminded Cincinnati voters that the government spent "many millions" for floor control.

Other political developments in Ohio:

Columbus — Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard declared Wendell L. Willkie intended to abandon the present farm program although the Republican presidential nominee attempted to make farmers believe that he would retain agricultural benefits if elected.

Cleveland — Raymond Moley, presidential adviser during Mr. Roosevelt's first term, said the President "rushed to the radio when panic seized his party," but was "too late to save his campaign for reelection."

Wooster — Sen. Robert A. Taft, Cincinnati Republican, asserted that the New Deal "yet has plenty of programs planned for restrict*ing business" and that legislation* is now pending "to subsidize and take over control of public school education."

Steubenville — A sound truck being used in Willkie's campaign was stoned at Mingo Junction and its equipment damaged at Brilliant, a town of Jefferson county.

Civilian Morale on Both Sides in for Hard Winter

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

There is every indication that civilian morale in both Germany and Britain is going to be delib*erately subjected to a gruelling* test from now until spring.

Each nation is bent on smashing the spirit of its opponent by starvation and other hardships so terrible as to cause despair and capitulation.

An important feature of this war of strangulation is the fierce bombing of industrial areas and supply centers which inevitably must result in loss of civilian life and impose a nerve strain highly dangerous to morale. Last night's violent bombing duel across the channel emphasized the vast importance attached to this line of strategy by both sides.

A Vital Feature

What with the battle of the Mediterranean boiling up, and the negotiations between Hitler and France, we may be inclined to overlook this more sombre operation of economic strangulation. But we shouldn't, for it represents one of the vital features of the conflict and one which, to my mind, will have more to do with determining the outcome of the war than will bullets.

Lest there be any doubt as to what is happening, both Nazis and British are openly bombarding each other with radio broadcasts, with literature dropped from the air, and with word-of-mouth propaganda spread by agents, urging the people to revolt against their governments.

Actually, this struggle through the cold winter months, which in themselves will add to the privations of the people, means no change in Britain's procedure excepting an intensification of operations.

Sought Early Victory

Hitler at first paid little attention to the blockade, being convinced that he was going to win the war by blitzkrieg. He was forced to change his tactics in mid-summer, however.

British Minister of Agriculture Hudson summed the position up succinctly only last Tuesday in the house of commons. He said Britain's food position had been improving rapidly. He added, though, that rigid economy was necessary because "I cannot foretell the shipping position this winter."

Germany, for her part, still has considerable supplies (how large is a carefully guarded secret), but the position is serious enough so that there long has been rigid food rationing.

STATE GRANGE OFFICIAL ON BETHLEHEM PROGRAM

Dan Hartman from the Ohio State grange central office in Columbus conducted musical games, a highlight of the entertainment at the Bethlehem grange Halloween party Friday night at the grange hall. He gave a brief talk on grange insurance service. Milford Schmidt gave a talk on "Backgrounds of Our Democracy." The program included a musical reading by Miss Pauline Kaelber, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Robert Rice, and stunt singing led by Miss Magdalene Strine. Guests included employes of the central office at Columbus and members of Grand Prairie and Progressive granges. Decorations were in charge of Mrs. Oscar Kaelber, Mrs. Ralph Williams and Miss Mary Mehaffey. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Strine and Mr. and Mrs. George Almendinger. At a meeting in two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Berringer will be given miscellaneous showers.

STEELS LEAD MARKET GAIN

Stocks Engage in Liveliest Saturday Dealings in Four Months.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Steels led the stock market on an upward swing today in the liveliest Saturday dealings of the last four months.

Gains ran to a point or so for a handful of issues although fractional advances were the rule elsewhere. Top marks were reduced in most cases at the close.

Despite occasional slow-downs, transfers for the two hours were in the neighborhood of 400,000 shares, the largest turnover for a brief session since the middle of June.

While sobering speculative influences were plentiful, brokers said, political optimism seemed to have revived sufficiently in Wall Street, in the wake of last night's outburst of campaign speeches, to bring in considerable short covering and a moderate amount of new investment purchases.

At the same time, lack of definite knowledge as to what is going on among the axis powers in the war on England still served as a chilling factor in boardrooms.

Bolstering steels were predictions mill operations at Pittsburgh next week would mount to a record peak for this section. A leading producer boosted the price of pig iron $1.50 a ton.

BOARD GETS BALLOTS FOR NOV. 5 ELECTION

Nearly 100,000 Supplied for Marion County.

Marion county's ballots for the Nov. 5 election were to be delivered to the board of elections today, completing the supplies needed to handle what may be a record-breaking vote.

Nearly 100,000 ballots of various types were ordered, 25,000 each of the main types. This does not mean that the election board expects a vote of 25,000, but it does mean the board wants to be on the safe side and not run out of ballots.

Election officials today announced that a preliminary checkup indicates there are 17,310 active voters in the registration files, the largest number in history here. The 17,310 are all Marion city voters. Rural voters do not register. The previous high in the files was something over 16,000.

manager of the Cincinnati joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, called Lewis "the equal of Benedict Arnold" and said he was "selling" C.I.O. members "down the river for a cabinet post."

AKRON RUBBER WORKERS STILL FOR ROOSEVELT

AKRON, O., Oct. 26 — Two leaders of the United Rubber Workers of America — one of Ohio's strongest C.I.O. unions— vigorously rejected today C.I.O. President John L. Lewis' recommendation for support of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee.

Stanley Denlinger, general counsel for the U.R.W.A., declared labor "must damn Lewis as American Communist No. 1 and the leading fifth columnist in the United States."

The C.I.O. chieftain "betrayed millions of American laborers," Denlinger contended.

From Sherman H. Dalrymple, national U.R.W.A. president, came a prediction his union would ignore Lewis' plea for Willkie support and "go down the line for President Roosevelt 100 per cent."

He asserted U.R.W.A. members were "convinced that President Roosevelt is the only candidate to whom we can safely entrust the management of this nation in the coming four years."

At Canton, Labor's Non-Partisan league of Stark county issued this statement:

"We can see no reason to change our earlier indorsement of President Roosevelt * *  Lewis spoke as an individual."

The county league includes both C.I.O. and A.F.L. leaders.

* * *

WHITE HOUSE VIEW EXPRESSED BY EARLY

John L. Lewis' indorsement of Wendell Willkie for president drew from the White House today an assertion that many C.I.O. leaders and local unions had "repudiated" Lewis' stand and had pledged their "loyalty" to President Roosevelt.

Stephen Early, White House secretary, said that "some 200 telegrams" had been received since Lewis announced his position in a radio speech last night. Most of them, he said, were from C.I.O. leaders and unions who said in general that Lewis had "chosen to go down the lonely road."

APPEALS BOARD FOR AREA IS CHANGED

Lima Man of Draft Age Is Replaced as Member.

Membership of the draft appeals board for the Third judicial district, which includes Marion county, has been changed, according to a report today from headquarters at Lima.

L. L. Landis of Lima was named as labor's representative on the board, succeeding Alfred T. Murphy, secretary of the Lima Central Labor Union, who is of draft age and therefore ineligible to serve.

The other members of the board, all the same as previously announced, are Cyril T. Guthery of LaRue, representing farmers; Dr. C. K. Startzman of Bellefontaine, representing medicine; Lucian Kinn of Fostoria, representing industry; and Ferdinand G. Behrens of Napoleon, representing the legal profession.

The board will hear appeals from local draft boards in 16 counties, including Marion, Hardin, Wyandot and Union.

Meanwhile on the Marion county front, the county's draft boards continued routine work preparatory to the national draft lottery at Washington on Tuesday.

DRAFT QUOTAS SET FOR LOCAL BOARDS

Totals To Be Distributed to Governors Soon.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Figures to be used in computing draft quotas for 6,175 local board areas throughout the country have been compiled by national selective service headquarters for early distribution to state governors.

Regulations require the army to notify the governors by Monday how many men each state must contribute to the first 30,000 draftees to be inducted into service Nov. 18. The call for men will be distributed by the governors among the local boards.

The board quotas will be figured on the same basis as quotas for the states. Figures which will be used in these computations will include estimates of the class 1A (fit and available for service) manpower of each state and estimates of the quota credits for volunteers from each state. The latter have been compiled here and will be sent out soon.

A state's quota is the difference between the number of class 1A men it should contribute to the land and naval forces in existence next July 1 and the number which it already has contributed, and will contribute through regular voluntary enlistments, to those armed forces.

Class 1A manpower for the whole nation is estimated by national headquarters at 5,000,000 of the 17,000,000 young men reg*istered.* A state with 50,000 men in class 1A has 1/100th of the manpower and should, therefore, contribute 1/100th of the total forces of 1,900,000 to be in existence next July 1, or 19,000.

That number would be reduced by the total of men in service plus those expected to enlist by July 1. If that aggregated 10,000, for example, the state's actual quota of conscripts would be 9,000.

NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR CLOSES SUNDAY NIGHT

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—The lonely wail of a bugle will sound the official requiem at midnight tomorrow for the New York World's fair, after a two-year run that has drawn nearly 45,000,000 visitors to Flushing Meadows.

The bugler sounding "taps" on the shores of Liberty Lake in the amusement area will signal the official end of the $150,000,000 exposition, but funseekers will be permitted a final fling into the morning hours before the gates finally close. To keep their frolicking within bounds, 1,000 uniformed patrolmen will be on hand.

Netx week, workmen will begin demolishing the hundreds of buildings and converting the site into a city park.

Stage Show Thursday On Varied Palace Schedule

Dead End Kids Coming for One Day; "Foreign Correspondent" To Be Shown Three Days.

Personal appearance of a group of the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys and showing of the widely-discussed adventure film, "Foreign Correspondent," feature the Palace theater bookings for next week.

The stage show, scheduled for Thursday, will bring to the Palace Dead End Kids Huntz Hall and Gabriel Dell and Little Tough Guys Harris Berger and Hally Chester. All four were members of the original cast of the Broadway stage show, "Dead End." In the movies, they have been members of two separate groups until recently. The show troupe coming to Marion also will include other song, dance and comedy performers.

Halloween Schedule.

Since Thursday is Halloween a special late show has been arranged, starting at 10 o'clock. The final stage presentation is scheduled for 10:50.

The film, "Foreign Correspondent," is booked for tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday. The picture was suggested by a book by the same title written by Vincent Sheehan, ace correspondent, and reflects current world events from a newspaperman's point of view. The director is Alfred Hitchcock who directed "Rebecca."

Joel McCrea is starred as the foreign correspondent and co-starred with him are Lorraine Day and Herbert Marshall.

Wednesday Bill.

Booked for Wednesday, for one day only, is "Angels Over Broadway," a dramatic hit starring Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Rita Hayworth and Tom Mitchell.

Written and directed by Ben Hecht, the story concerns the strange adventure of a girl out of nowhere, a boy who trims "suckers" and thinks he's tough, a drunken playwright trying to play God and a little man seeking the end of disaster.

In addition to the stage show, the Thursday program will include the film "I'm Still Alive," which deals with the adventures of a Hollywood stunt man. Kent Taylor and Linda Hayes have the stellar roles.

"Christmas in July," a sparkling comedy - romance starring Dick Powell and Ellen Drew, will be featured on the Palace's bill Friday and Saturday.

Powell plays the role of a young man with ideas. He wants to marry Miss Drew, but, lacking cash, he enters a national slogan contest. He spends most of the "prize" money only to learn that the committee judging the slogan entries has not yet selected the winner.

A device has been invented that is asserted to age hams with electricity in seven weeks instead of the months required to smoke cure them, also reducing shrinkage.

N. Y. City Life Filmed

James Cagney and Ann Sheridan Starred in Drama at Ohio.

The drama of two young people fighting for a place in a metropolitan city is unfolded in the Ohio's current attraction, "City for Conquest," starring James Cagney and Ann Sheridan.

Next Friday, following the Cagney-Sheridan picture, the feature will be "Down Argentine Way," which has been booked for a week. One of the big pictures of the season, "Knute Rockne—All American," has been booked for a week starting Friday, Nov. 8.

New York is the "City for Conquest" and the busy, swarming, many-faceted city serves not only as the background but as a central part of the story, which is told as seen through the eyes of a sage roving the streets and alleys. His eyes miss little and his philosophical mind leaves little for him to misunderstand about the big city.

Frank Craven, the narrator in "Our Town," portrays the sage.

Cagney and Miss Sheridan play young people from the slums, determined to fight their way upward. Cagney wins the Golden Gloves championship and fame and fortune seem to be his for the asking. But instead he picks a job as a truck driver, with a steady salary, so he can realize a dream of helping his younger brother finance his musical education. Miss Sheridan, whose dancing feet have started her on the way up the ladder, is disappointed in him and is swept off her feet by another young man who shares her love of glitter. Together they dance their way to fame but she doesn't quite forget the boy whose sweetheart she promised always to be.

Seeking to match her celebrity with his own the boy turns back to boxing and rises rapidly. But at the top both the boy and the girl find there is heartbreak and tragedy until they turn back to the life they know best.

Theoretically, the imaginary line which separates the hemispheres runs through the Archipelago of the Azores; strategically, the Azores are one of the most important stepping stones, as the trans-Atlantic Clipper demonstrates, from Europe to America. We must, therefore, ask ourselves whether it may not be necessary to declare that the islands of the Atlantic are included within the Act of Panama, the Monroe Doctrine and the necessities of hemisphere defense. For it may be a great deal safer to prevent these islands from falling into other hands than to deal with the consequences if they have already fallen.

Two Stars On Marion Bill

Cantor and Karloff Head Casts in Double Feature for Two Days.

Eddie Cantor and Boris Karloff are the stars of the Marion's Sunday-Monday pictures, the comedian in "40 Little Mothers," the character actor n "Before I Hang." There will be a midnight prevue tonight. Judith Anderson, Ralph Morgan, Rita Johnson and Baby Quintanilla are featured in the Cantor picture. The comedy emanates from hundreds of pranks played by boarding school girls on Cantor, an earnest, rather timid professor who is their teacher. The love interest is in his affection for a foundling baby. Karloff plays a scientist searching for a cure for old age. Experimenting on himself, the doctor unknowingly inoculates his own body with a serum containing blood from a hanged murderer. This injection causes a weird transition which makes a murderer out of Karloff.

"Florian," one of the unusual stories of the past season, will be brought back Tuesday and Wednesday on a bill with a reshowing of "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case." "Florian" is a cavalcade of the pomp of old Austria and the fall of the empire told through the eyes of a royal stallion for whom a man and a woman ransack the world. Robert Young and Helen Gilbert play the leading roles. In the "Dr. Kildare" film Lew Ayres, young interne assistant to Lionel Barrymore, takes matters into his own hands to help a surgeon friend who is in trouble over what is thought to be a bungled brain operation.

Walter Pidgeon is cast as Nick Carter, super-sleuth, in "Phantom Raiders," booked for Thursday through Friday on a bill with a Don "Red" Barry western, "Frontier Vengeance." Pidgeon and Florence Rice solve a murder and uncover an international shipwreck ring. The supporting cast includes Joseph Schildkraut and Donald Meek.

Harding Wallops Shelby, Retains Chance To Share Titl

Presidents, Winners by 19-6 Score, Now in Three-Way Tie for 2nd Place.

By CHARLES HOSTETLER
Marion Star Sports Editor

Marion Harding got back into the race for North Central Ohio conference football victory by hanging up a 19-6 victory over Shelby, previously unbeaten in league competition, last night at Harding stadium before approximately 3,500 fans, one of the largest home crowds of the season.

The Presidents not only shoved themselves back in the championship race but threw the door to the NCO throne room wide open. By vanquishing the highly touted Whippets they gave themselves and three other teams, Shelby, Mt. Vernon and Bucyrus, a chance to share in the 1940 title.

Shelby still heads the list today, boasting one more victory than the teams which are in a triple deadlock for second place. That the Whippets are due for at least a slice of the crown is conceded since they have only to dispose of the cellar-dwelling Galion Orangemen to wind up with a record which no other entry can surpass.

Marion's victory came comparatively easy, despite pre-game dope that Shelby was the league's toughest ball club. The Presidents showed a reversal of form over the previous week when they lost to Bucyrus. They beat the Whippets in punch, outcharged an opposing line that was equal in weight, and had the visitors reeling before the first quarter was half played.

Hurst and Petty Score

Day Hurst scored two touchdowns and Lou Petty racked up another, all coming on short dashes through the line, which culminated marches from midfield. Harding shunned any pretense of having an aerial attack and completed but one pass during the entire game. Shelby resorted to everything in the books, but found its line plays stopped for little gain and its air raid very nearly completely bottled up.

Statistics

Scrimmage gains: Harding 255, Shelby 80.

First downs: Harding 15, Shelby 6.

Own fumbles recovered, Shelby 1.

Passes completed: Harding 1 for 10 yards, Shelby 3 for 90 yards.

Incomplete passes: Shelby 5.

Passes intercepted by: Harding 1.

Penalties: Harding 55 yards, Shelby 5 yards.

Shelby's lone score, late in the final quarter, came when a 40-yard Lauble-to-Whitney pass was completed in the end zone. In the seconds before the half ended Shelby had waded to Marion's five-yard line, largely through the use of passes, but was stopped by the timer's gun. Marion's performance against the NCO pace-setting crew proves more conclusively than any other argument that last week's defeat shouldn't have happened.

Summary of the victory over Shelby follows:

Marion Receives

Winning the toss Marion elected to receive and Shelby chose the south goal. Ferguson returned Daugherty's kick-off 15 yards to the Marion 27. Petty, Ferguson and Hurst alternated in carrying the ball to midfield. Ferguson, skirting his own left end, got away for 15 yards, but Marion was penalized 15 yards for clipping and it was second and 12 near midfield. A Roberts-to-Richardson pass was completed for 10 yards, but it fell short of a first down and Ferguson punted to Shelby's 15. A quick kick went over Roberts' head but he managed to make a five-yard return to his own 40. A trade of punts cost Marion three yards. Petty hit a wide hole on the left side and without further blocking from his teammates made 15 yards. Hurst hit tackle for four and Ferguson broke away for 17 and a first down on the Shelby 16. Petty plunged a yard through center before the quarter closed.

Second Quarter

Ferguson picked up two before Hurst hit right tackle and cut back to go into the end zone standing up for Marion's first touchdown. The attempted placement was unsuccessful. Ernsberger made a 16-yard return to his own 31 on Short's kick-off. Offside penalties were called on three successive plays, twice against both teams, and Shelby kicked out on Marion's 29. Hurst bolted along the sidelines on a 14-yard jaunt and after Petty hit center for five he was off on another run of 18 yards. Marion was forced to kick from midfield and Ferguson's boot was downed on Shelby's two-yard marker by Short. Lauble's quick kick traveled 60 yards and Ferguson returned 10 to midfield. Roberts went through the right side to Shelby's 23. Hurst and Petty made it first down 10 yards out and four plays later Petty plunged the last three yards for the touchdown. Again the attempted placement was unsuccessful. The Whippets took the kick-off on their own 31. Daugherty broke through inside tackle and was away for a 40-yard run, being brought down from the rear by Roberts on Marion's 30. A Lauble-to-Ernsberger pass was good for 20 yards and a line play was stopped five yards short of the goal when the half-time gun cracked.

Second Half

Bonecutter returned Short's half-time kick-off 15 yards but was injured on the play and left the game. Shelby kicked to the Marion 40, from which point the Presidents racked up a first down before returning the punt to Shelby's 21. A Lauble-to-Whitney pass was completed for 30 yards and a first down at midfield. With fourth and five Keller intercepted a pass over the line and Marion took possession at midfield. Ferguson booted out on the 15. A return kick went to the 50 and Marion started another sweeping ground attack. Hurst, Petty and Ferguson were the main cogs in the offensive and the end of the third period found Marion with a first down on Shelby's eight-yard line.

Fourth Quarter

Hurst, on an identical cut back carried the ball over standing up. Short added the point from placement to run Marion's lead to 19-0. Daugherty returned Short's kick-off 20 yards to midfield. Lauble and Whitney picked up a first down on line plays. Ernsberger teamed with Lauble to erase a four-yard loss and make it first down on the Marion 30. Shelby would have been held for downs, but a penalty for unnecessary roughness on the fourth down, gave the Whippets a first on the Harding 29. Three passes were incomplete and on the fourth Lauble heaved to Whitney in the end zone. The ball was batted into Whitney's arms by a Marion player apparently attempting to knock down the pass. Gilbert took Shelby's kick-off and returned 15

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 26—Up along Lake Erie, all the duck hunters aren't convinced the state conservation department did them a favor in changing the starting hour from 7 a. m. to "sunrise."

Some of the boys in the "millionaire marshes" seem to get a few ducks (Commissioner Don Waters got the limit a few days ago) but the run-of-mine marksmen aren't doing so well.

The weather is the big reason for the small bags, the shooters say. The ducks staying far out on the lake until darkness falls before coming in to the ponds and marshes. In the morning, favorite shooting time for one and all, the ducks are gone again before sunrise.

Under the old 7 a. m. shooting hour the boys did much better, they say.

(On the purely personal side, we sat in a blind along the lake two mornings and two evenings this week, without getting a shot. And the chances are the ducks would have been just as safe in front of our blunderbuss as they were huddled out in the center of Lake Erie, miles out of shotgun range.)

Marion's Robin Hoods

Boy Eyre, 25, and Delbert Tolle, 24, both of Marion, are out in Utah this week attempting to bag a buck with bow and arrow. The modern Robin Hoods are experts with the ancient weapons.

Jesse Owens, the Big Ten national intercollegiate and Olympic sprint and hurdle champion of a couple of years ago, is back at Ohio State to finish his college career, after a turn at the professional end of the cinder track game. All that money he made has slipped through his fingers, Jesse said, but the speed demon isn't downhearted.

Ohio Loses P. G. A.

The professional golfers tournament will not be held in Ohio in 1941, as predicted. It was tentatively headed toward the Akron Firestone course, but the $15,000 price tag pinned on it by the P. G. A. put a crimp in the negotiations.

No wonder Heidelberg's Student Princes are doing okeh in the Buckeye college grid wars. They have a dozen former high school football captains on the squad, six on the varsity and six on the frosh.

Trade Winds Howling Around Indian's Tepee

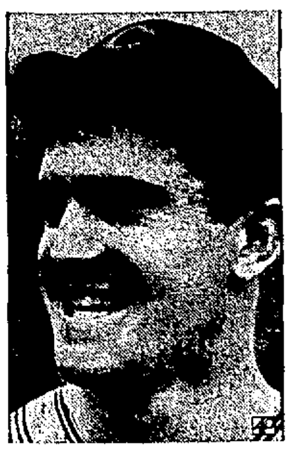
By GERALD HEALEY
International News Service
Sports Writer

CLEVELAND—When the David Harums of baseball meet in trading sessions this winter names of several Cleveland Indians will come up for consideration after the disastrous 1940 season that saw petty bickering between the players and Manager Oscar Vitt make the difference between a pennant and second place.

Although the Cleveland ownership isn't saying anything about trades, it is pretty generally known that at least three regulars, and probably more, will be placed on the trading block in exchange for some power-hitting outfielders—if any other teams are willing to part with them.

Ben Chapman, the former New York Yankee, has just about outlived his usefulness with the Indians. He patrolled left and right fields for the club the past season, but his hitting was anemic and his mental attitude did nothing to improve the morale of the team.

Jawin' Johnny Allen, another former Yankee, had a mediocre season on the pitching mound and was used only occasionally in a starting role. Much of the time he did relief work and he is considered by most observers to be ripe trading material.



JEFF HEATH

BEN CHAPMAN

Health Could Go

Jeff Heath, hot-tempered outfielder, whose batting wasn't so torrid, and Frankie Pytlak, stormy petrel of the catching staff, would be let loose if other club owners held out some good batting bait.

Hal Trosky, captain of the Tribe, who also had a disappointing season with the willow, is another trading possibility, although he is the most unlikely one to be swapped because of the dearth of good first basemen.

Lou Boudreau and Ray Mack, sensational second base combination, are fixtures and Ken Keltner had a good season at third although his stickwork also was far below what Vitt had expected when the season started.

It is very likely that Roy (Beau) Bell, who came from the Detroit Tigers in a trade will be given another season to show what he can do at the plate, but his job isn't built on the firmest foundation. In fact, the only gardener who is certain to be in the lineup next April when the first ball game starts is Roy Weatherly. He had a big season in center field and was the only regular to hit over the .300 mark.

Hitting Feeble

The Indians defensively were the best in the American League, but their inability to connect with the ball when men were in scoring position lost them many a ball game. This fact, coupled with the dissension over what the players called Vitt's "jitters" and the attitude of President Alva Bradley from the time the players complained until the close of the season undoubtedly did something to Cleveland's flag chances.

Then there was the unmerciful riding the Tribe received on its road trip after going to Bradley to squawk about Vitt's tactics in the dugouts. That didn't help their playing either. They said Vitt was sarcastic and was spoiling the team's morale. Bradley promised an investigation, but nothing came of it and manager and players went right down to the wire as far apart as the poles.

Pitching Is Tops

The Indians even had the best-balanced pitching staff in the league, led by Bob Feller, who hung up 27 victories together with 18 for Al Milnar and 15 for Al Smith, a pair of southpaws.

Rollie Hemsley, the rollicking playboy who became a teetotaler in time to have a great season behind the bat for Cleveland will need help next season, but Bradley figures he could use that help from anyone but Pytlak.

Pytlak left the club in a huff early in the campaign and went to his home in Buffalo. That was after a holdout fight that gave him no chance to condition in the south.

Vitt blamed this inactivity for Pytlak's poorest batting performance of his major league career. He was far below the .200 mark when the flag case ended.

So the tepee prayer is for ball players who can plaster that ball. The defense will look after itself.

Maybe the answer will come at the winter meetings, but Bradley, or whoever his manager is, will have to do some tall talking to convince rival managers that they should turn over some heavy hitters for a combination of performers that range anywhere from the prima donna type to just "washed up."

Former Lumberjack To B In Monday Wrestle Sho

Double main events scheduled for 90 minutes each, bringing to Marion a top-ranking newcomer and marking the return of an old favorite, feature the mat show arranged for Monday night at the Marion Steam Shovel arena.

The line-up is:

Billy Weidner of San Francisco vs. James Lott of Birmingham, Ala., and Buddy Knox of Memphis, Tenn.: vs. James Heffner of Sherman, Tex., are the junior heavyweight pairings for the 90-minute main events. Joe Wolfe of Columbus and Lefty Pacer of New York City are matched for the 20-minute preliminary.

To Make Debut

Weidner will be making his debut before a Marion audience. He came in from the west coast several years ago, after turning from his profession as a lumberjack, to earning a livelihood in the squared circle. From log rolling to mowing down human targets is a long jump but the husky Weidner made it with room to spare.

He's managed to elbow his way into the top rank of the professional junior heavyweights and in recent seasons he's been a particular favorite in Columbus. Weidner takes on a toughie in his inaugural appearance here. Lott is a rough customer, as fans who have seen him in action can testify. There's little to which he won't stoop in order to gain an edge and at the same time he's well able to absorb plenty of rough treatment in his rugged six-foot frame.

Knox Is Favorite

Buddy Knox is the favorite of more than a year ago. Fans who have been introduced to the sport within recent weeks won't recall Knox's stirring performances here against the rank and file of the junior heavyweights. The Tennessee husky has never asked a favor or feared a foe. He is adept at the art of leg wrestling and makes the most of it to counter and block the best grips of his opponents.

Knox will need all of his skill and ring experience to take the measure of fast-stepping Jimmy Heffner. The Texan is no one's easy mark. He has been a consistent winner here during recent months and richly deserves the top billing he gets on next week's show. The pair should provide fans with plenty of fast-moving entertainment.

As usual the show will open at 8:30 p. m., the curtain raising with the 20-minute prelim.

War Dept. Keeps Up To Date Its Plans for Repelling U. S. Invasion

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Poke around the war department and ask questions and you will find that it has a complete plan of defense worked out to flatten any type of attack upon the United States that skilled officers can imagine.

Nor are the plans allowed to gather any dust.

Officers fresh from the field, familiar with the areas covered by the individual plans, are continually going over them at the army war college, suggesting changes which the strategists in the war plans division ponder — and frequently adopt.

Thus they keep the defense plans a live and ready instrument, fully cognizant of changing weapons and modes of warfare. And though the strategic location of the United States narrows and sharpens the underlying philosophy of the war plans, it also widens the possible theaters of operations.

Two Points Involved

Basically, the war plans rest upon two points:

Keep the Panama Canal clear at all times for the quick movement of the fleet from one ocean to the other.

Make certain that no aggressor from abroad has a base in this hemisphere from which to operate.

Its not any battle along the Mexican border or the Canadian border that the United States army is thinking about. The United States expects no trouble along either its northern or its southern borders.

It hopes to do whatever fighting it may have to do farther away from home than that. Plans that exsist for meeting any hostile army on its own continent borders are last ditch plans.

The far flung areas of the Pacific, the Atlantic, South America, the Panama Canal and Central America are what hold the watchful eyes of the war and navy departments.

Path To Orient

Wake, Midway, Guam, the Hawaiian and Philiphine islands, all of the signboards on the route to the orient, have been made increasingly important by the Japanese flare-up.

The army does not regard them as offensive outposts for use in any attack upon Japan. But each of them shortens the distance an attacking force would have to travel in moving against the west coast.

And north of Hawaii lie the emmensely rich territory of Alaska and the Aleutian islands. Both the army and the navy are establishing new bases in Alaska, putting reconnaissance and surveillance outposts in the Aleutians. The army figures that if they be held in reasonable strength, no enemy will try any invasion of the northwestern United States and thus lay itself open to a flank attack.

In the Alantic and Caribbean, the army and navy are prepared to operate as a team to watch over the new bases obtained from Great Britain. They help to fence off attack upon both the Atlantic coast and the Panama Canal.

The army is developing a highly mobile, well armed, seasoned force which can leap to the aid of any republic in this hemisphere upon whose territory an aggressor might seek to establish a base.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Oct. 27

SUNDAY'S horoscope should be a most propitious one for all major plans and projects, particularly those pertaining to affairs of church, and state, educational as well as entertainment or amusement enterprises. These while under a very expansive and solidifying aspect yet may call for a fair degree of acumen, tact or diplomacy in order to placate some adverse forces or antagonisms. Deal carefully with groups or organizatons. The faculties are keenly inspirational.

Those whose birthday it is should be on the threshold of a year of splendid opportunities for putting the fortunes and ambitions on a hopeful and progressive basis, with expansive and stabilizing forces giving fine impetus to new and important projects. But use finesse and cleverness when dealing with opposition, especially from large bodies or groups. The inspirational forces will assist.

A child born on this day should have much efficiency and stability for attaining high objectives in life. It will have brilliant and sound mentality supported by keen intuitions and inspirational guidance.

* * *

For Monday, Oct. 28

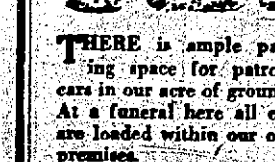
MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a memorable day, with swift-moving and breathtaking events. This may eventuate in the emotional, romantic, or social life or may prove devastating or drastic in more material affairs. In any case be ready for uprooting, exciting and thrilling experiences, likely to culminate in unexpected success and a stabilization of the affairs, generally.

Those whose birthday it is may be surprised by a year of sudden and unforeseen events, in which a radical spading up or disintegration may supply many thrills and dynamic adventures, and culminating in sound and progressive denouements, if wisely managed. This may occur in the emotional or romantic life or in business of an unusual but constructive nature. But in all keep poised and constrained.

A child born on this day should be unusually ingenious and versatile, with creative ability of a high order, either in art, science, romantic literature. Romance and adventure loom large in its social and professional career.

CLEVELAND MASONS DUE HERE TONIGHT

Plans were completed today for entertaining 60 members of Euclid Lodge No. 599, F. and A. M. of Cleveland at a dinner meeting of Lodge No. 70 at the Masonic temple tonight. Following the dinner, scheduled for 6 o'clock, the Master Mason degree will be conferred on a class of candidates. Last year, members of the Marion Lodge visited the Cleveland lodge.



THERE is ample parking space for patron's cars in our acre of grounds. At a funeral here all cars are loaded within our own premises.
